By WALTER S. CLARK JR.

Another chapter in the crack-down on narcotics in Ulster County tied in with District Attorney Joseph P. Torraca's continuing project—United Narcotics Control by Law Enforcement (UNCLE)—was entered in police records Friday night with the apprehension of six alleged "pushers" or "sellers."

Through a well coordinated operation the district attorney directed simultaneous raids with excellent cooperation from his staff, State Police BCI officers from Ellenville, Kingston and Sidney headquarters of Troop C, and Police Chief Abe Rand and his forces.

The six accused men, all charged with criminally selling dangerous drugs, second degree, a felony, were held in bail of $5,000 cash or $10,000 property pending disposition of the charges before Village Police Justice Ronald Elias in Ellenville.

Confiscate Heroin

It was reported that a quantity of heroin valued at $400 to $500 was confiscated as the results of the raids.

An undercover man had been working in the Ellenville area, mingling with suspected "pushers" of drugs the last several weeks, gathering evidence which last night resulted in the crackdown and arrests of the suspects.

One official said that action Friday evidently broke up a drug ring in Ellenville, where frequent complaints had been made of narcotics activities in recent months.

Charged with the felonies were:

Charles Mutz, 72, operator of a motel in Kerhonkson, and reportedly a former constable in the Town of Wawarsing; Frank Vega, 40, and Louis Rosado, 30, both of Maple Avenue; Victor Sanchez, 31, Harry Guzman, 23, and Benedetto Lopez, 23, of Center Street, all of Ellenville.

Guzman also faces a charge of illegal possession of a firearm. An additional bail of $500 was fixed by Judge Elias on that charge.

The joint police effort in coordinating the raids under command of District Attorney Torraca was participated in by Assistant District Attorney Albert Lonstein, Thomas Mayone, special investigator for the district attorney's office, police Chief Rand and BCI Lieut. Samuel Rowe of Sidney, and Senior BCI Officers Edward Shannon, Vincent Versage and Charles Teelon.

Eight BCI officers and five uniformed troopers and policemen from Ellenville were members of the raiding parties that hit simultaneously in Ellenville and took the accused men in custody.

Reportedly Made Purchase

The undercover man, according to available information from authorities, had been working in Ellenville about six weeks, scouting around in various places to obtain evidence. It was reported that late yesterday he made a purchase of four $15 packs of heroin from one of the suspects.

Another source disclosed that one of the men had in his possession a quantity of uncut heroin worth $100 in its present form, when nabbed by authorities.

'Unrealistic' Costs For Riot Controls

By GAYLORD SHAW

WASHINGTON (AP) — The chairman of the House Appropriations Committee says programs recommended by the President's Commission on Civil Disorders could cost hundreds of billions of dollars and "this is wholly unrealistic."

The commission's report, added Rep. George H. Mahon, D-Tex., "may raise hopes and expectations which could do more harm than good." He contended it is unsound to suggest that racial prejudice can be cured by spending huge sums of money.

Criticism and Praise

His comments Friday joined a flow of criticism—most of it from Southern congressmen—directed at the findings of the group that spent seven months investigating last year's riots. Other congressmen praised the report.

The panel released a 12,000-word summary report Thursday night and issues the rest of the document—some 250,000 words—this evening.

In its summary, the commission urged massive, compassionate and sustained efforts to halt separation of the races, including programs to provide 2 million jobs, 6 million housing units, better school systems and a welfare system designed to guarantee "a minimum standard of decent living."

One commission member, Sen. Fred R. Harris, D-Okla., said many of the recommendations can be met by adopting legislation already before Congress, such as the civil rights bill.

"If we do run into programs that need money," Harris said, "we should enact the necessary taxes."

Another commissioner, Rep. William W. McCulloch, R-Ohio, agreed with Harris many recommendations are before Congress "in one form or another," Rep. James C. Corman, D-Calif., also a commission member, singled out help for the police, jobs for young people and summer education as "the most important aspects which need immediate attention before this summer."

Sen. Edward S. Muskie, D-Maine, called the report a "blunt appraisal of the injustices blighting the total environment of inner-city residents."

And Sen. Abraham A. Ribicoff, D-Conn., called for steps to "let each individual walk with dignity."

Five County Area

Operation UNCLE has been active in a five-county area including Ulster, Dutchess, Orange, Delaware and Sullivan—since plans for joint operations were framed by the district attorneys in those counties.

In another case involving narcotics, preliminary examination for four Massachusetts residents arrested on the State Thruway on Feb. 23 by Trooper John Turck, was adjourned Friday until March 15 by Ulster Town Justice Sherwood E. Davis.

New information was filed against the four defendants by the district attorney's office after withdrawal of the original complaint. The crime charged remained the same.

Marjorie Ann Hotz, 20, of 62 Thornton Road, Chestnut Hills, Mass., continued a plea of innocent through her attorney, Franklin P. Gavin. The other defendants are: Charles Lawrence Mason, Jr., 26, of 26 Riley Road, Northboro, who was represented by attorney Aaron E. Klein; Gerald Michael Sullivan, 18, of 17 Valley Road, Concord, who appeared yesterday with Edward T. Feeney, Kingston attorney, and Gregory Howard Street, Boston, Mass., who is represented by Attorney Noel Tepper of Poughkeepsie.

lessness. It offers little encouragement to the millions of Americans who believe the way to stop riots is to use strong methods.

The commission condemned "moves to equip police departments with mass destruction weapons, such as automatic rifles, machine guns and tanks."

"I don't think the commission's comment makes much sense at all," responded Chief Deputy Walter Townbridge of Monroe County, Mich., a Detroit suburb that has ordered a $13,500 armored car and other riot-control equipment.

Sheriff Peter Pitchess of Los Angeles County, whose office has purchased a surplus Army armored vehicle, said "We in law enforcement are doing our part to alleviate and eliminate the root causes of civil disturbances."

Rocky: Ready and Willing to Serve

By JACK BELL

WASHINGTON (AP) — New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller says he won't enter primary battles but is "ready and willing" to become the Republican presidential nominee if the party wants him.

But former Vice President Richard M. Nixon contends no one will be drafted for the nomination.

Rockefeller put himself on call Friday "to serve the American people" if there is "a genuine feeling on the part of the party that that's what they want."

He alone will decide, the governor told a news conference, and when and if there is sufficient evidence of support to indicate he could get the 667 convention votes necessary for the nomination. But he shied away from taking the usual political risk—primary fights—in pursuit of the prize.

In marching to the brink of active candidacy, the New York governor laid down some ground rules calculated to avoid any brawling contest in the primaries with Nixon. He will not let his name go on the ballot in any of them, he said, because to do so would cause dissent within the party.

Asked why such a move would threaten a party split, he replied: "Well, I had experience once before, four years ago."

This was a reference to his defeat by Barry Goldwater in the 1964 California primary which sealed Goldwater's nomination. It also was an allusion to complaints at that time by moderate Republicans that Rockefeller wouldn't get out of the way in time to let anyone else challenge Goldwater.

Rockefeller discounted in advance the effects of write-in drives for him. He said he will not visit either New Hampshire or Oregon where such drives are under way.

Rockefeller said there isn't time left to do anything effective in New Hampshire's March 12 primary. As for the May 28 Oregon primary, he said it would not be meaningful because Nixon would be the only major candidate entered there.

Campaigning in New Hampshire, Nixon said: "If Rockefeller doesn't enter the primaries he will not be nominated and I will be. No one is going to be drafted for this nomination. No one is going to back in."

The former vice president also made a quick visit to Washington, where he said—despite Rockefeller's announced intention not to campaign there—that the New Hampshire primary will be an important test of the governor's strength.

Although predicting victory for himself, Nixon estimated Rockefeller could get up 40 per cent of the vote.

Rockefeller said he is not going out to build any national organization.

But he invited supporters to do this in his behalf by saying: "There is a group that feels strongly about the situation and wants to go out and organize. I think that's part of a draft effort."

Rockefeller said he will start defining his positions on national issues in speeches, some of them outside his state. These will include the Vietnam issue, on which he has been silent for months.

He will have an opportunity to air his views in cross-country platform hearings to be held by the Republican Governors Association beginning in Seattle, Wash., late this month.

Rockefeller stressed in a statement to a GOP governors caucus that met informally in Washington before the National Governors Conference wound up that he thinks the party wants a nominee "who can get enough independent and Democratic votes to get elected."

He left no doubt in subsequent remarks he thinks he is that man and doesn't believe Nixon can fill the bill.

Rockefeller made this statement after it became obvious that a move to have moderate Republican governors join in publicly urging him to get into the race had collapsed.

He said this will require study to determine if this is permissible under the Department of Correction regulations.

A meeting with the Legislature's Building and Sites Committee is also planned to further expedite the start of a building.

The Correction Commission's report of August, last indicated that no more funds should be expended to rehabilitate the present jail and recommended that a completely new facility be constructed.

Ulster County Jail will not be ordered to close as long as progress is being made by the county to solve the problem.

This is the information given to Legislator Clifford Snyder, R-Saugerties, chairman of the Sheriff's Committee of the County Legislature. Snyder was assured by Richard Woodward, secretary to the State Commission of Correction a showcase order would not be filed in court to force the closing of the jail as long as the county pursued its program to provide new facilities.

Snyder said the Albany commission was pleased and impressed with the work of the new committee thus far this year. While in Albany, Snyder and his committee studied blueprints of new jails planned for Warren and Saratoga Counties. After Podell's tour the county attempted to alleviate the overcrowded conditions by moving 20 prisoners to Orange County Jail at a cost of $8 per day to bring the jail population closer to capacity. The move was very unpopular with local attorneys who complained about the inconvenience of visiting their clients.

Woodward, the commission secretary told the committee in Albany this week that a bill filed in the State Legislature if approved would provide for 50 per cent reimbursement in the construction of approved county jail facilities.

Commence Biggest Air Campaign, Marines Repulse New Red Assault

By GEORGE ESPER

SAIGON (AP) — Allied forces fought heavy battles at both ends of South Vietnam's northern frontier Friday and reported killing 330 enemy soldiers, many of them with a sheet of machine-gun fire from armored vehicles.

In the area of one of the battles, in which South Vietnamese rangers at Khe Sanh reported killing 70 enemy attackers Friday, U.S. B52 bombers and smaller fighter-bombers kept up what has become the biggest air campaign of the war.

Near Allied Positions

The eight-engine B52s aimed 1.5 million pounds of bombs in 10 raids Friday and today at North Vietnamese troops tunneling toward the Khe Sanh combat base. One strike was only 750 yards from the allied positions and another was just 1,000 yards away, close enough to shake allied bunkers.

U.S. fighter-bombers flew 187 sorties in the area Friday and pilots reported setting off eight secondary explosions and several fires in a North Vietnamese storage area and truck park, indicating they hit ammunition or fuel.

Some 500 Vietnamese rangers, guarding Khe Sanh along with 5,000 U.S. Marines against an expected massive Communist assault, repulsed 500 North Vietnamese who made a probing attack Friday.

Other South Vietnamese troops, used the armored vehicles, personnel carriers with heavy machine guns, in a clash at the eastern end of the frontier. They were sweeping south of the Cua Viet River while a special U.S. Marine landing team of perhaps 1,000 men swept the north side, about seven miles south of the eastern end of the demilitarized zone.

The government forces reported killing 203 Communist soldiers, and said eight South Vietnamese were killed and 25 wounded.

Came Off Boats

The U.S. Marine unit came ashore from boats in the South China Sea more than a month ago for its operation in the enemy stronghold area, coastal marshlands dotted by villages, sand dunes and hedgerows.

It ran into heavy fire Friday and spokesmen said 36 Communists and 22 Marines were killed and 87 Marines wounded in the day-long battle that followed.

The allied forces sweeping through the Cua Viet Delta are trying to take Communist pressure off the provincial capital of Quang Tri, seven miles to the south, and to keep open Highway 1, a key supply route to allied bases from Da Nang to the northern frontier.

Just to the west of the delta, U.S. Marines reported killing 21 enemy troops with artillery after a Communist force of unknown size was spotted moving in the open two miles north of Con Thien.

Attack Bridge

In air raids on North Vietnam, all-weather Navy A6 Intruders attacked one of four vital highway bridges in the key port city of Haiphong and a cargo transfer and storage complex on the Red River only 1.8 miles southeast of the center of Hanoi.

The Haiphong bridge attacked Friday is only one mile west of the center of the city, on the main route to Hanoi. The raiders also attacked a railroad yard halfway along that route in one of 69 missions for the day. Earlier this week, the Intruders attacked a yard in Haiphong, just west of the bridge.

According to District Attorney Torraca the "field work" that led up to the action last night was carefully and efficiently carried out by the police—state and village, who were assisted the last several weeks by the undercover investigator.

The county prosecutor and Lonstein both contended that operation UNCLE will continue in the county indefinitely in an effort to combat narcotic activities that have been brought to light by many arrests in the last several weeks.

Further investigation will be centered currently in the Town of Wawarsing section of the

Just to the west of the delta, U.S. Marines reported killing 21 enemy troops with artillery after a Communist force of unknown size was spotted moving in the open two miles north of Con Thien.

Attack Bridge

In air raids on North Vietnam, all-weather Navy A6 Intruders attacked one of four vital highway bridges in the key port city of Haiphong and a cargo transfer and storage complex on the Red River only 1.8 miles southeast of the center of Hanoi.

The Haiphong bridge attacked Friday is only one mile west of the center of the city, on the main route to Hanoi. The raiders also attacked a railroad yard halfway along that route in one of 69 missions for the day. Earlier this week the Intruders attacked a yard in Haiphong, just west of the bridge.

Ministers Plan Expanded Service

Expansion of services and plans for Easter events were discussed at the Thursday meeting of the Kingston Area Council of Churches at Clinton Avenue Methodist Church.

It was noted that the weekly services of worship offered at the Infirmary and the Home for the Aged will be expanded to include the Infirmary Annex at Golden Hill. Clergy from member churches provide these ministries.

The Rev. C. F. Yohe, council chaplain, described some of his work among patients in both hospitals in Kingston and with inmates at the county jail.

An Easter sunrise service sponsored by the youth of the Port Ewen Methodist and Reformed Churches will be open to the youth of Kingston churches.

The radical changes that have developed in recent years necessitating a reconsideration of the church role on the campus scene.

Reports were given on the tutorial program provided during the week at Clinton Avenue Methodist Church by New Paltz College students. The homework assist has been effective in lifting the level of academic performance for many of the children and has contributed to a more favorable climate in the 10th Ward.

Neighbors Report

Also brought to the attention of members was the Kingston Neighbors Association, a provisional body aimed at improving housing conditions through incorporation to receive federal funds. Delegates affirmed their support of these measures.

Thomas Phillips, a student at Bard College, shared plans for the development of a coffee house in the Kingston area. Those attending recognized the need for such a venture in the city and expressed interest in learning more about the plans.

The Rev. Edwin C. Coon gave the benediction at the close of the business session which was chaired by the Rev. William A. Studwell, host pastor, and president of the council.

Broadway Stores Are Burglarized

The Kingston detective division is investigating a rash of burglaries and burglary attempts last night on Broadway near Foxall Avenue.

Hardest hit, according to police, was Joe's Giant Submarine Shop at the corner of Foxall and Broadway. Entrance was gained through the front door and it was reported that the cigarette machine and the juke box was rifled. Police say $25 is missing. A rear window was also broken.

Steve's Barber Shop, a few doors down from Joe's, was also entered through a rear door but nothing was reported missing although the cash register was tampered with.

Across the street, at the Frank A. Reis Liquor Store, a rear door window was broken but it is not known if it was an attempted break-in or whether the wind broke the window. Nothing is reported missing from the liquor store. Missing from the Kay Ray Gift shop are some religious articles. Entry was reportedly gained through a rear door of the Broadway shop next to Steve's Barber Shop.

LBJ Predicts Dems Will Return to Fold

By FRANK CORMIER
BEAUMONT, Tex. (AP) —

President Johnson, winging around the country on what is officially considered a nonpolitical journey, predicts all Democratic strays will return to the fold—and be welcomed—once the party's presidential candidate is chosen.

This, along with a folksy off-the-cuff defense of administration policy on Vietnam, highlighted a Johnson speech at a Friday night testimonial dinner in Beaumont for Rep. Jack Brooks, a fellow Democrat.

The President was to fly to Marietta, Ga., to watch the unveiling of the nation's newest aerial giant—a military transport that is the world's largest in overall size, weight and air-lift capacity. Called the C-5A, the jet will roll off the production line of the Lockheed Georgia Co.

"I'm not too concerned about party conflicts," he said at Brooks' testimonial. "Next summer when the national convention chooses its nominee, whoever it is, then I believe all the strays are going to come back to the fold."

"And we're going to welcome them with open arms," Johnson's flying stops, in keeping with new White House policy, usually were announced one at a time, after his plane was airborne and on its way. The first stop was Houston and the Manned Space Flight Center where he tried to give a boost to space program morale sagging in the face of administration-sponsored budget cuts.

Then, in Beaumont, he visited an old folks home and handed out the first three pensioner checks reflecting bigger benefits voted by Congress last year. His final stop of the day was at the Brooks dinner.

In his space center address,

Johnson said: "You will have to go through some heartaches and headaches. There will be little men with poison pens, without vision, who will seek to destroy your great efforts—but they will not prevail."

"We will not surrender our station. We will not abandon our dream. We will never evacuate the frontiers of space to any other nation," he said.

Johnson, who cut next year's budget request for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration from $4.8 billion to $4.3 billion, conceded: "We may have to reduce some of the plans we had, but we will not forget you and we will not stop our work. We will proceed."

He defended the performance of the Saigon government and army. For example, he declared: "Certainly they have corruption... there's somebody stealing something in Beaumont right now."

He said the United States is doing its utmost to improve the ethics and efficiency of South Vietnam but reported that a top advisor cautioned him, "if we push it to the breaking point, we'll wind up with worse than we've got."

Several times Johnson invoked the "motto does not make right" motto and declared "right will prevail" in Vietnam.

Again, he asserted his own interest in seeking peace and pictured Hanoi as rejecting every proposal in that direction.

Seven persons were injured in traffic accidents Friday night and early today, according to area state troopers.

At 10:30 p. m. yesterday, cars driven by Michael J. McGowan Jr., 22, of 220 East Union Street, and Allen C. Sitomer, 21, of 1815 Monroe Avenue, the Bronx, collided at North Ohioville Road, Town of New Paltz.

Trooper Edward Pulver said McGowan was driving north and Sitomer was traveling in the opposite direction when the crash occurred on the crest of a hill. Sitomer was cited by Trooper J. F. Czaplicki of Highland for failure to keep to the right.

Injured in the mishap and treated at Vassar Hospital were Sitomer, who received lacerations of the upper lip; Alan Reinstein, 21, of 1249 East 86th Street, Brooklyn, contusions of the head; and Matthew Tyburczy, 21, of Route 32, New Paltz, contusions of the legs. The latter two were passengers in Sitomer's vehicle.

Candice Sisco, 15, of Route 9W, Highland, received contusions of the left hip at 12:15 a. m. today, when the car in which she was riding was in a collision on New Paltz Road, Town of Lloyd. Trooper Robert Whalen reported the girl was riding with Edward J. Perkins, 17, of Highland, when the vehicle was in a collision with one operated by Ralph Castellano, 68, of 13 Grove Street, Highland.

At 3 a. m. Charlotte Yerkins, 17, of Wawarsing, was driving a car north on Route 55A at Sholom Road, Lackawack, when the vehicle crashed into guard posts as she attempted a right turn. Miss Yerkins sustained lacerations and bruises. Passengers in the car were Charles Roy, 21, of Kerhonkson, who received lacerations and possible back injuries, and Kathleen Yerkins, 15, who suffered contusions of the forehead. Ellenville troopers said charges are pending.

Social Security Checks Fatter

WASHINGTON (AP) — More than 20 million Americans, young and old, are receiving fatter Social Security checks starting today.

And the government is adding nearly half a million more persons to the Social Security rolls under the legislation enacted by Congress late last year.

The benefit increase, at least 13 per cent for everyone and higher in some cases, is the first since a 7 per cent hike in July 1965.

The dollar total of the increase is the largest ever for the system: $2.9 billion over what would have been paid this year. The average couple's check goes from about $145 to $265.

Maximum benefits for a couple increases from $213 to $230; the maximum for a single person goes from $142 to $160. Smallest monthly payment to a worker who retired at age 65 reaches $55, from $44.

To finance the increase, the government will take a bigger bite from workers' earnings. But only one in four will have more deducted this year. That's because the percentage withholding stays the same this year—a maximum of 4.4 per cent—though it is applied now to earnings up to $7,800 instead of $6,000.

The take goes up thereafter, however, to a maximum of 5.9 per cent in 1967.

Congress also voted expanded coverage and benefits effective with today's checks.

Suspend Sentence
Alice Leona Rowles, 26, of New Paltz, who entered a new plea of guilty to petit larceny late in January was sentenced to six months in county jail with sentence suspended this week in county court before Judge Raymond J. Mino.

She was charged in the indictment with robbery, third degree and assault, second degree in connection with an attack in August 1967 on Louis Burlich of New Paltz in which the victims' wallet containing $40 was taken.

Mrs. Rowles was arrested with Marvin R. Weatherford, 39, of Lake Minnewaska by state police and charged with the crime. Weatherford, originally from South Carolina changed plea to guilty of attempted assault, second degree as a felony. He is awaiting sentencing pending return of a probation report.

"And we're going to welcome them with open arms," Johnson's flying stops, in keeping with new White House policy, usually were announced one at a time, after his plane was airborne and on its way. The first stop was Houston and the Manned Space Flight Center where he tried to give a boost to space program morale sagging in the face of administration-sponsored budget cuts.

Then, in Beaumont, he visited an old folks home and handed out the first three pensioner checks reflecting bigger benefits voted by Congress last year. His final stop of the day was at the Brooks dinner.

In his space center address,

Johnson said: "You will have to go through some heartaches and headaches. There will be little men with poison pens, without vision, who will seek to destroy your great efforts—but they will not prevail."

"We will not surrender our station. We will not abandon our dream. We will never evacuate the frontiers of space to any other nation," he said.

Johnson, who cut next year's budget request for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration from $4.8 billion to $4.3 billion, conceded: "We may have to reduce some of the plans we had, but we will not forget you and we will not stop our work. We will proceed."

He defended the performance of the Saigon government and army. For example, he declared: "Certainly they have corruption...there's somebody stealing something in Beaumont right now."

He said the United States is doing its utmost to improve the ethics and efficiency of South Vietnam but reported that a top advisor cautioned him, "if we push it to the breaking point, we'll wind up with worse than we've got."

Several times Johnson invoked the "right does not make right" motto and declared "right will prevail" in Vietnam.

Again, he asserted his own interest in seeking peace and pictured Hanoi as rejecting every proposal in that direction.

The indictment charges the defendant with entering on Nov. 19 last, the residence of Clarence Perry, city, and the theft of $82 in cash, entering the residence on Nov. 23 of Walter Smith, city, and the theft of $90 in cash, and entering on Nov. 25 the residence of Robert Williams, city, and the theft of $68.

Richard Leslie Turk of Quarryville, represented by Charles Gaffney, pleaded innocent of the charge in the indictment, unauthorized use of a motor vehicle, and the case adjourned.

Linda Linzy, 17, through her attorney Ernest E. Schirmer, entered a plea of innocent to the charge of unauthorized use of a motor vehicle and she was released to the custody of her attorney for appearance March 20.

Joseph F. Connors Jr., charged in the indictment with assault, second degree, had his case adjourned to March 20 through his attorney, Schirmer.

The case of Anthony N. Serrao was also adjourned and bail continued. Serrao is charged with criminal possession of a dangerous drug, second degree. Francis Martocci appeared as counsel.

Martocci entered a plea of innocent for his client, Michael Cecelia, also known as Michael Cecelia, charged in the indictment with robbery, second degree, and petit larceny. Bail was continued and the case adjourned to March 20.

The cases of Frank and John Keener, both charged with assault in the second and third degrees, were also adjourned through notice to the court.

Social Security Checks Fatter

WASHINGTON (AP) — More than 20 million Americans, young and old, are receiving fatter Social Security checks starting today.

And the government is adding nearly half a million more persons to the Social Security rolls under the legislation enacted by Congress late last year.

The benefit increase, at least 13 per cent for everyone and higher in some cases, is the first since a 7 per cent hike in July 1965.

The dollar total of the increase is the largest ever for the system: $2.9 billion over what would have been paid this year. The average couple's check goes from about $145 to $265.

Maximum benefits for a couple increases from $213 to $230; the maximum for a single person goes from $142 to $160. Smallest monthly payment to a worker who retired at age 65 reaches $55, from $44.

To finance the increase, the government will take a bigger bite from workers' earnings. But only one in four will have more deducted this year. That's because the percentage withholding stays the same this year—a maximum of 4.4 per cent—though it is applied now to earnings up to $7,800 instead of $6,000.

The take goes up thereafter, however, to a maximum of 5.9 per cent in 1967.

Congress also voted expanded coverage and benefits effective with today's checks.

Suspend Sentence

Alice Leona Rowles, 26, of New Paltz, who entered a new plea of guilty to petit larceny late in January was sentenced to six months in county jail with sentence suspended this week in county court before Judge Raymond J. Mino.

She was charged in the indictment with robbery, third degree, assault, second degree, in connection with an attack in August 1967 on Louis Burbich of New Paltz in which the victims wallet containing $40 was taken.

Mrs. Rowles was arrested with Marvin R. Weatherford, 39, of Lake Minnewaska by state police and charged with the crime. Weatherford, originally from South Carolina changed plea to guilty of attempted assault, second degree as a felony. He is awaiting sentencing pending return of a probation report.

Firemen fought a fire all night long on Main Street in Cairo last night but could not save the Triple C Country Club which was engulfed in flames when they arrived.

Two companies fought the blaze one from Cairo and one from Freehold, but the three-story, 25-room building was completely destroyed. The blaze was discovered at 11:15 p. m. last night and was finally doused at 6:15 this morning.

The building was unoccupied at the time of the fire. There were no injuries reported to any of the firemen under the direction of Chief George Pine of Cairo.

Volunteers are being sought for the painting of the Reformed Church hall. Robert Toogood or Frank Fede may be contacted for further information.

Superintendent Andrew J. Murphy III pointed out that the city's rinks had been operating until the middle of last week because of the unseasonable cold, "but now a condition exists whereby the sun is so high in the heavens that even if the temperature is below freezing, the melting process goes on."

Murphy claimed that recreation department officials felt the season to have been "unusually good" as far as ice skating went, with at least two of the rinks having been open for a total of 44 days.

High points of the season were Sunday, Jan. 7, when 670 skaters were on the rinks, and Saturday, Jan. 13, at which time a season's high of 680 was reached in spite of freezing cold weather.

500,000 Unemployables

Labor statistics have been telling us for months that the hard core unemployables in this country number a mere 500,000, the men and women whom technology has displaced, or whose schooling is insufficient to follow simple directions, or who for other reasons do not fit into today's complex economy.

The suggestion that the government become the employer of last resort, developing service jobs for these people, was rightly rejected by President Johnson. Last month, he presented a program to Congress aimed at getting private business to train and employ these unemployables in 50 major cities by mid-1971. Paying the companies the added costs they incur in training and placing their quota will be less expensive than creating government jobs for them.

First, business was sold on the idea through the National Alliance of Businessmen, with Henry Ford 2d as chairman. He warned that "It is no longer merely a matter of social justice and the principles of democracy. Our very national unity and domestic peace are at stake" in providing jobs for the hard core unemployables.

Then organized labor was enlisted, with George Meany, president of AFL-CIO, promising to name a full-time staff man to ask local union officials to work with the businessmen involved in the 50 major cities. Recognizing that the disadvantaged cannot meet current employment standards, labor is prepared to co-operate with a manager who must overlook low productivity, disciplinary problems and high absentee rates which he would not tolerate among regular employees.

If, by their cooperation, government, management and labor can create and fill 500,000 jobs with these disadvantaged, in two years many problems will be on the way to a solution—poverty, welfare and, hopefully, riots and crime in the streets.

Midair Hijackings

The 110 persons on that commercial airliner that was hijacked over Florida, and on orders of a thug holding a pistol to a stewardess' head was landed in Cuba, suffered merely inconvenience and delay. This is no reason for the case to be filed away and ultimately to become lost under a layer of dust.

The government, through the Federal Aviation Agency, or Congress, has a firm duty to act to make it impossible for bomb-carrying individuals, or persons carrying concealed weapons, to board any plane. Midair explosions that send scores of innocent persons to their deaths, or midair hijackings that are laden with potential tragedy recur every now and then, not frequently enough to sink deep into the nation's consciousness but often enough cause concern among those who deplore wanton crime. It's preventive, not punitive, action that's needed. The future of air travel is unlimited, and inevitably there will be repetitions of this week's Florida-Cuba incident, perhaps with a less happy outcome.

Certainly it lies within this nation's scientific genius to come up with some ingenious electronic detection device that would betray the presence of arms or explosives devices on persons about to board planes, or in baggage before it's put aboard. And if any travelers drag out the "incursion against personal freedom" argument, let them take a train.

Henry J. Taylor Says Outlook in 1968 Economic Picture

Eight important outlooks now emerge in the 1968 economic picture—especially significant in this election year.

(1) We'll all be further pinched by an increased cost of living—like the stealthy Tahiti crab with its scarlet and cerulean lips that closes on its prey and does not let go. Washington admits consumer prices rose three percent last year. The inflation is now mounting at least a third faster. Living costs look to be headed an additional four percent higher in 1968.

(2) Washington's nearly incredible overspending and the pressure of the deficit are the chief causes of the inflation with its increase in the cost of living. Both the overspending and deficit are sure to scar.

(3) The pinching effect inevitably extends to interest rates. Interest is merely the rent on money. When the rent on money is high it is because the demand is high. The high rate is not a cause of the inflation. It is the result of the inflation. And incomparably the biggest borrower, the biggest demander of money, is the government itself as a result of Washington's overspending.

In the so-called tight money period of 1966 some interest rates hit the highest level in 40 years. But 1967 was even worse. The U. S. Treasury's October, 1967, offer of 5 1/2 percent on its seven-year notes was the highest interest rate paid by the government in 46 years. Some rates actually climbed in 1967 to a 100-year high. It is now clear that interest rates will remain high, at least for the predictable future.

(4) The crablike pinch extends to the deficit's cost, a fact that the Washington Robin Hoods of the Red Ink constantly tuck under the bed. The trouble with the "public" debt is that we tax-paying peasants who are private citizens must pay it.

The Federal debt is now $340 billion. Last year Washington ran up a $20 billion deficit, again financed by money we haven't got. Now Mr. Johnson treats us to a $186 billion budget, with its additional borrowings. The 1968 Federal debt interest will exceed $14 billion. That's $1.16 billion a month, $38.3 million a day—every day—to pay for the money already borrowed.

This debt is costing us more than Mr. Johnson has budgeted for housing, health, welfare and education combined. But who would know it?

(5) The crablike pinch embraces the cost of labor per unit of manufactured output. Last year it was more than five percent higher than the year before. Union wage settlements are currently involving over-all increases in pay and fringes of about six percent.

(6) Our exports look as if they'll hit record highs. At $31 billion in 1967, they were up 5 1/2 percent over 1966. But imports at $26 billion were up four percent. This $4.4 billion trade surplus was far below the $5.2 billion in 1965 and $6.9 billion in 1964. The gap's trend is dramatically down. One of 1968's questions, discussed in this column January 3, is to what degree our mounting inflation (costs) will hurt our competitive position in foreign markets and at the same time attract more imports.

Drew Pearson Says Deposed Vinh Loc Is Convincing South Vietnamese War Lord

PLEIKU—Of the four South Vietnamese war lords, the most controversial was Vinh Loc. I visited with him shortly before the Saigon government, under U.S. pressure, fired him as corps commander.

At six-foot-two, he is a giant among a race of small men. His appearance is as impressive as his height. He is handsome, dashing, debonair. From the blue silk scarf tucked in at the neck to his polished black paratrooper boots, he is the Douglas MacArthur of Vietnam.

Here in the central highlands, Vinh Loc has been supreme. His troops, among the best in the country, have enforced his will throughout the second corps area. It is still a question whether he will bow to Saigon's will. His dismissal was ordered after repeated complaints from American authorities that he was siphoning off U.S. aid into his own pocket.

Vinh Loc candidly discussed with me his powers as a potentate and the charges of corruption against him. He spoke in English with a tantalizing, appealing accent, dramatizing each point with expressive gestures and acial contortions. Now and then, he leaped to his feet, strode to a wall map and struck some feature in his territory with a long, black pointer.

"I wear two hats," he explained. "My first hat is military commander. I have a second hat as governor of my corps area. That is why they call me war lord. 'It is better to call me overlord.'"

He explained that all the province and district chiefs were military officers.

"How to deal with these people if I am not military?" has asked with a shrug of his facial muscles.

Exasperating Red Tape
"If you wait until the wheels of government turn," he added, referring to the Saigon government, it is so far, so long. Many decisions you must make right away instead of sending notes to ground—or a friendly village would be used and ordinary houses used to simulate the objectives. Each simulated building would be in its proper relative location as nearly as we could manage.

"We would also locate where each man we wanted to reach would be at the time of our secret terrorist attack. We would also determine where his family would be.

"Our intelligence men would have detailed each man's schedule—when possible—and provided photographs.

"During the same six to nine months our transporters would have been carrying in weapons one by one into the cities or near the enemy military installations and carrying in ammunition in small loads.

"Usually these men and women were those who normally carried produce or other goods into the cities for sale. But any sort of person would do who had an open reason for going into the city or village. Funerals are convenient for this purpose.

"The weapons would be well-garbed in the ammunition carefully packed against dirt, water or other spoilage.

"Once, in the city, the weapons and ammunition would usually be buried in various places, either near a target objective or in some withdrawal position where we might have to fight it out.

"The carriers would bury weapons and ammunition in almost any location—graveyards, the back yards of co-operating families, in a ceive the quality education that is essential in these demanding times.

500,000 Unemployables

Labor statistics have been telling us for months that the hard core unemployables in this country number a mere 500,000, the men and women whom technology has displaced, or whose schooling is insufficient to follow simple directions, or who for other reasons do not fit into today's complex economy.

The suggestion that the government become the employer of last resort, developing service jobs for these people, was rightly rejected by President Johnson. Last month, he presented a program to Congress aimed at getting private business to train and employ these unemployables in 50 major cities by mid-1971. Paying the companies the added costs they incur in training and placing their quota will be less expensive than creating government jobs for them.

First, business was sold on the idea through the National Alliance of Businessmen, with Henry Ford 2d as chairman. He warned that "It is no longer merely a matter of social justice and the principles of democracy. Our very national unity and domestic peace are at stake" in providing jobs for the hard core unemployables.

Then organized labor was enlisted, with George Meany, president of AFL-CIO, promising to name a full-time staff man to ask local union officials to work with the businessmen involved in the 50 major cities. Recognizing that the disadvantaged cannot meet current employment standards, labor is prepared to cooperate with a manager who must overlook low productivity, disciplinary problems and high absentee rates which he would not tolerate among regular employees.

If, by their cooperation, government, management and labor can create and fill 500,000 jobs with these disadvantaged, in two years many problems will be on the way to a solution—poverty, welfare and, hopefully, riots and crime in the streets.

Midair Hijackings

The 110 persons on that commercial airliner that was hijacked over Florida, and on orders of a thug holding a pistol to a stewardess' head was landed in Cuba, suffered merely inconvenience and delay. This is no reason for the case to be filed away and ultimately to become lost under a layer of dust.

The government, through the Federal Aviation Agency, or Congress, has a firm duty to act to make it impossible for bomb-carrying individuals, or persons carrying concealed weapons, to board any plane. Midair explosions that send scores of innocent persons to their deaths, or midair hijackings that are laden with potential tragedy recur every now and then, not frequently enough to sink deep into the nation's consciousness but often enough cause concern among those who deplore wanton crime. It's preventive, not punitive, action that's needed. The future of air travel is unlimited, and inevitably there will be repetitions of this week's Florida-Cuba incident, perhaps with a less happy outcome.

Certainly it lies within this nation's scientific genius to come up with some ingenious electronic detection device that would betray the presence of arms or explosives devices on persons about to board planes, or in baggage before it's put aboard. And if any travelers drag out the "incursion against personal freedom" argument, let them take a train.

Henry J. Taylor Says

Outlook in 1968 Economic Picture

Eight important outlooks now emerge in the 1968 economic picture—especially significant in this election year.

(1) We'll all be further pinched by an increased cost of living—like the stealthy Tahiti crab with its scarlet and cerulean lips that closes on its prey and does not let go. Washington admits consumer prices rose three percent last year. The inflation is now mounting at least a third faster. Living costs look to be headed an additional four percent higher in 1968.

(2) Washington's nearly incredible overspending and the pressure of the deficit are the chief causes of the inflation with its increase in the cost of living. Both the overspending and deficit are sure to scar. (3) The pinching effect inevitably extends to interest rates. Interest is merely the rent on money. When the rent on money is high it is because the demand is high. The high rate is not a cause of the inflation. It is the result of the inflation. And incomparably the biggest borrower, the biggest demander of money, is the government itself as a result of Washington's overspending.

In the so-called tight money period of 1966 some interest rates hit the highest level in 40 years. But 1967 was even worse. The U. S. Treasury's October, 1967, offer of 5 1/2 percent on its seven-year notes was the highest interest rate paid by the government in 46 years. Some rates actually climbed in 1967 to a 100-year high. It is now clear that interest rates will remain high, at least for the predictable future.

(4) The crablike pinch extends to the deficit's cost, a fact that the Washington Robin Hoods of the Red Ink constantly tuck under the bed. The trouble with the "public" debt is that we tax-paying peasants who are private citizens must pay it.

The Federal debt is now $340 billion. Last year Washington ran up a $20 billion deficit, again financed by money we haven't got. Now Mr. Johnson treats us to a $186 billion budget, with its additional borrowings. The 1968 Federal debt interest will exceed $14 billion. That's $1.16 billion a month, $38.3 million a day—every day—to pay for the money already borrowed.

This debt is costing us more than Mr. Johnson has budgeted for housing, health, welfare and education combined. But who would know it?

(5) The crablike pinch embraces the cost of labor per unit of manufactured output. Last year it was more than five per cent higher than the year before. Union wage settlements are currently involving over-all increases in pay and fringes of about six per cent.

(6) Our exports look as if they'll hit record highs. At $31 billion in 1967, they were up 5 1/2 per cent over 1966. But imports at $26.6 billion went up four per cent. This $4.4 billion trade surplus was far below the $5.2 billion in 1965 and $6.9 billion in 1964. The gap's trend is dramatically down. One of 1968's questions, discussed in this column January 3, is to what degree our mounting inflation (costs) will hurt our competitive position in foreign markets and at the same time attract more imports.

(7) The outcome bears directly on our balance-of-payments problem. Washington "cooks the books" on this figure and calls the 1967 deficit about $4 billion, whereas by traditional calculations it was about $5 billion. The 1968 deficit looks to be bigger.

(8) So does the gold drain, but not necessarily for this reason. The Washington Robin Hoods of the Red Ink have hopelessly confused the public on this subject because they wanted to hide the connection between the gold crisis and their own overspending. They want it to sound like merely a matter of exports vs. imports. Hokey-hokus-hokum.

The loss of gold in the London market is not directly related to our balance of payments. The U. S. can and does lose gold because Washington's endless deficits, and the Kennedy-Johnson career of financial irresponsibility, boosting the debt limit all the while, shakes confidence in the dollar.

Finally, self-driven into removing the gold backing behind our money entirely they add insult to injury by claiming this helps the dollar. What hurts the dollar is what hurts us all: The Great Society's total failure to put its own house in order.

Jim Bishop: Reporter

Next to your skin, the substance you touch most frequently is plastic. Like air, it exists everywhere you go, unseen, unnoticed. The making of plastic is so universal that, in one more decade, the United States will be making more plastic than steel. No product in the history of man has been so quickly accepted without being understood.

The first plastic was invented a century ago in Newark, N. J. Two brothers, John W. Hyatt and Isaiah, tried to make a synthetic ivory. At the time, billiards was a popular game and the balls were made from ivory tusks. In Africa, elephant herds were depleted and the price of ivory escalated out of reach. The brothers Hyatt had many failures. Then they combined nitric acid, short-fiber cotton and camphor.

What came out of the pressure oven was an inflammable plastic called celluloid. It didn't dent the billiard market but it was great for men's collars, ornamental combs, and dentures. In 1890, another Newark chemist named Baeklin came up with a solid plastic made of carbolic acid and formaldehyde. The first substance was poison; the second was used for embalming. This one was called Bakelite.

It made good cigar holders, color doorknobs and fixtures. And yet, it was not until World War II that small plastics manufacturers were goaded into researching and expanding. It was always a small business. The United States Government, at war, found itself short of many basic materials. Plastic, in its many disguises, began to replace missing materials.

Now there are 18 major families of plastics. The big one is called thermo-plastic. It can be hardened into any shape at all, reheated and softened, and remolded into another shape without losing any of its resilience and durability. It is made of cellulose, acetate and strong vinegar. The big companies, such as DuPont and Monsanto Chemical, began to move into the plastics industry.

Overnight, the possibilities became limitless. Any one of the 18 plastics families could be thickened, thinned, laminated, molded into any shape, or—and this was a breakthrough—married to other substances like steel, wood and glass to improve them.

Plastics were used to make eyeglass frames, synthetic rubber, leather substitutes, shoes, kitchen counters, garbage cans and disposable food containers. Some would show scratch marks; other would not. A thin sheet of translucent plastic was used as a sandwich to make unbreakable glass.

Today, big cabin cruisers are made of polyester (reinforced fiberglass), plastic siding on houses is replacing wood. There is no maintenance problem of painting, denting or breaking. It is also used to make sewer pipe, human heart valves, gutters, sprouts, cushions for automobile seats, the wheel of your automobile, chair covers, upholstery, dinnerware and contact lenses.

It's a $7 billion dollar industry that bends the suppliant servant to man's needs. What is a nylon stocking? Plastic and wool. Three years ago, the average American automobile used 40 pounds of plastic. It is now up to 70 pounds. It is used to make oil filters, brake linings, dashboard cushions, trunk lining, soundproof parts, carburetors. The glass in your headlights and tail-lights isn't glass.

There are always new plastics because research chemists are always trying additional substances to add to the basic formulas. Polypropylene is new. It can be bent into a shape and will withstand one million flexings without losing its shape. Acrylic fiber, which is really hydrogen, oxygen, and carbon fused under intense heat and pressure, is used to make unbreakable bottles.

The grass in the Houston astro dome is plastic—every last green blade of it. August Busch wants a permanent lawn for his St. Louis Cardinals. He can have a plastic one for $60,000. DuPont has a new plastic called Delrin. It is so strong that it can be used as the head of a hammer. Wigs are now being made of dacron. A man in West Palm Beach acquired a 1931 Ford, took it apart, made plastic molds in fire engine red, and now turns out old Fords that are stronger and more durable than the originals.

The outer cover on my package of cigarettes is plastic. In the recent sanitation strike in New York, the plastics industry gave out 200,000 plastic refuse disposal bags free. They probably wanted to prove that man is now in the plastics age and out of the Garb Age...

Drew Pearson Says Deposed Vinh Loc Is Convincing South Vietnamese War Lord

PLEIKU—Of the four South Vietnamese war lords, the most controversial was Vinh Loc. I visited with him shortly before the Saigon government, under U.S. pressure, fired him as corps commander.

At six-feet-two, he is a giant among a race of small men. His appearance is as impressive as his height. He is handsome, dashing, debonair. From the blue silk scarf tucked in at the neck to his polished black paratrooper boots, he is the Douglas MacArthur of Vietnam.

Here in the central highlands, Vinh Loc has been supreme. His troops, among the best in the country, have enforced his will throughout the second corps area. It is still a question whether he will bow to Saigon's will.

His dismissal was ordered after repeated complaints from American authorities that he was siphoning off U.S. aid into his own pocket.

Vinh Loc candidly discussed with me his powers as a potentate and the charges of corruption against him. He spoke in English with a tantalizing, appealing accent, dramatizing each point with expressive gestures and racial contortions. Now and then, he leaped to his feet, strode to a wall map and struck some feature in his territory with a long, black pointer.

"I wear two hats," he explained. "My first hat is military commander. I have a second hat as governor of my corps area. That is why they call me war lord. 'It is better to call me overlord.'"

He explained that all the province and district chiefs were military officers. "How to deal with these people if I am not military?" has asked with a shrug of his facial muscles.

Exasperating Red Tape
"If you wait until the wheels of government turn," he added, referring to the Saigon government, "it is so far, so long. Many decisions you must make right away instead of sending notes to Saigon and getting answers four or five weeks later."

He held his head in his hands and rolled his eyes to illustrate what he meant about the exasperations of bureaucracy.

In wartime, he said, "We need decisions right away. There is no time to wait for Saigon. I command; I hit the enemy; I solve the problems. So people will have confidence in me, so people will run to me."

He reconsidered his objection to being called a war lord.

"I think," he said, smiling engagingly, "that a war lord is a bad nickname. I like this very much because we are making war."

He recognized that "democratic people are afraid of such powers," but recalled that Congress had granted President Roosevelt special wartime powers during World War II.

"It takes a dictator to run a war," Vinh Loc declared. "We need war lords who can deal right away with the problems. If the problems are not solved, the people will listen to the communists."

First priority should be given, he said, to achieving results. Otherwise, "The communists will solve the problems for us."

The 42-year-old Vinh Loc, whose name literally translated means Prince Loc, talked frankly about his royal heritage and inheritance. His father, a cousin of the Emperor Bao Dai, was a minister in the imperial court. In 1946, the communists captured him, held him hostage for a year, then executed him. The widow, now 75, still draws a huge pension from the government, Vinh Loc said.

"Corruption Is Customary"
He acknowledged that, despite his family wealth, the government had sent him to schools in Vietnam, France, Germany and the United States.

He also acknowledged that corruption is "a serious problem" in South Vietnam.

but warned that the communists had sought to destroy effective leaders by spreading stories that they were corrupt. He pointed out, too, that customs are different in Vietnam and the U.S.

It is customary for Vietnamese to give gifts, he said, to government officials who perform services for them.

"If you try to help people," he said, "they will send you gifts. Western people call this corruption. Here it is considered 'sentimentality.'"

He cited the case of his own mother, who kicks back 25 per cent of her pension to the treasury officials who prepare her monthly checks. "This is a large amount of money," explained Vinh Loc. "I bring her this check from the government and I tell her, 'Why don't you keep this? It belongs to you. You don't have to give part of it back to the government officials.'"

"But she always tells me, 'Aw, boy, you don't know. It was a lot of effort for these people to get this money.'"

The war lord lifted his eyebrows in an expression of hopelessness, to indicate how hard it is to change an old lady.

"We cannot rub out this habit right away," he said, and he quoted a Vietnamese proverb: "The laws from the emperor must not be stronger than the habits of the villagers."

He agreed, however, that officials who extort payments from the people must be punished. On the question of reforms, however, Vinh Loc suggested that they should be tested on a small scale first.

Meanwhile, Vinh Loc made it clear he would brook no interference from Saigon in his domain. This may be one reason President Nguyen Van Thieu finally forced a showdown. It remains to be seen, however, whether South Vietnam's most spectacular war lord will step down without a fight.

Terror Attack Is Brilliant And Meticulous Ho Tactic

By RAY CROMLEY
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Four years ago in Vietnam, this reporter met with one of Ho Chi Minh's former high staff officers experienced in city infiltration.

This meeting was arranged because a Saigon American official grown old in guerrilla wars had shown me a paper he had written estimating that the Viet Cong then—in 1964—had the capability of setting off simultaneous severe terrorist attacks in South Vietnam's cities.

The man who had been a strategist for Ho had promised to outline in detail how such attacks were arranged and carried out.

These are my notes from that time in his words: "We'd get our orders from Hanoi—usually six to nine months in advance. We never took on a major operation in less than three months."

"Our first step was to set up models of our objectives. First we'd lay out a sand table—run through the operation time and again."

"Then, in some safe area in the countryside, we'd simulate an attack with our men. In this area we would draw out or mark out crudely but accurately the city, military installations, police stations, homes and offices of key officials, military officers, policemen, businessmen, teachers and other leading people."

The scale would be as large possible. The buildings would be marks on the ground—or a friendly village would be used and ordinary houses used to simulate the objectives. Each simulated building would be in its proper relative location as nearly as we could manage.

"We would also locate where each man we wanted to reach would be at the time of our secret terrorist attack. We would also determine where his family would be."

"Our intelligence men would have detailed each man's schedule—when possible—and provided photographs."

During the same six to nine months our transporters would have been carrying in weapons one by one into the cities or near the enemy military installations and carrying in ammunition in small loads.

"Usually these men and women were those who normally carried produce or other goods into the cities for sale. But any sort of person would do who had an open reason for going into the city or village. Funerals are convenient for this purpose."

"The weapons would be well-greased, the ammunition carefully packed against dirt, water or other spoilage. "Once, in the city, the weapons and ammunition would usually be buried in various places, either near a target objective or in some withdrawal position where we might have to fight it out."

The carriers would bury weapons and ammunition in almost any location—graveyards, the back yards of co-operating families, in a thicket or any other available piece of land. These carriers would all be expendables.

"Meanwhile, each man at the training base would be drilled over and over again in his precise mission—how he was to kidnap or kill his man or his man's family, how he was to attack a city or provincial office, a police station or an army installation, and the precise timing with which he was to carry out his task."

"If he were to be guided by a local city man or woman, then he would be instructed as to precisely what time and where they were to meet."

"Several days before the attack, the attacking groups would disband, turn in their military equipment, weapons and clothing and dress like ordinary farmers, villagers or city residents. If they later needed military dress, it would be supplied locally near the point of attack."

"Then, dressed as ordinary citizens and unarmed, these men would individually make their way to the city, village, military installation or other objective on their own."

"If the police should notice one of these men, they would see nothing suspicious. If a policeman would stop one of these agents, there would be nothing to give him away."

"When each man arrived at the assembly point and as time approached for attack, he would be brought his weapon by an expendable co-operator who had taken it from its hiding place shortly before. Then the operation would begin."

This letter is being written to your newspaper because it concerns a problem which faces all of us. We are urging your readers' support for the Educational Conference Board Bill. Write to: State Senator Jay J. Rolison Jr., State Capitol, Albany, N. Y. 12224.

For several years there has been a strong feeling in New York State that we just cannot continue to go to the property base to support our schools, our local government, and our county government, without eventually reaching some kind of limit. Additional state aid for education is sorely needed if our children are to continue to receive the quality education that is essential in these demanding times.

There must be demonstrated grass roots support for the above bill because the situation is critical. Please urge your legislators to vote in favor of the Educational Conference Board Bill. Write to: State Senator Jay J. Rolison Jr., State Capitol, Albany, N. Y. 12224.

Hints from Heloise

By HELOISE CRUSE

Dear Heloise:

I was making gelatin and wanted to give some to our new tenants upstairs who have children. So I let the gelatin cool thoroughly, then poured it into paper cups which I had set in a pie tin and put them into the refrigerator.

There was no worry about returning dishes, or taking the chance of a child breaking one, when this "goodie" was put in paper cups.

Moreover, the children loved the different colored paper cups!

Mrs. R. Tooley

This would be a good after school snack for little tots, too! Mothers wouldn't even have to wash the cups, eh?

Thanks a million for passing this one along.

Heloise

Dear Heloise:

If you're tired of looking for a convenient place to keep placemats when not in use, use a multi-skirt hanger (that's one that holds several skirts). Just hang them longways by snapping two clips on each placemat.

Mrs. J. P. McGuirk

Dear Heloise:

Did you ever try to take a pot of hot soup to a sick neighbor?

You surely can't have the children carry it 'cause they might spill it—unless you do as I did. Set the pot in a plastic bucket and it can be very easily carried with one hand—even by a youngster.

Reader

Dear Heloise:

Here is a step saver for those who keep their clothes hampers somewhere in the living area of the house, while the laundry unit is set up in the basement.

I keep two large, heavy plastic bags inside the hamper and use one for colored clothes, one for the white.

This eliminates last minute sorting of clothes and makes a convenient tote-bag in which to carry the laundry to the basement.

In this way, if we don't wash colored clothes every day, we've saved ourselves those extra trips of returning the dark ones to the hamper.

Mrs. John Carter

Dear Heloise:

The easiest way to clean a carpenter's file is to put a piece of adhesive (or masking) tape on it lengthwise, then rub your fingers over it, pressing the tape firmly over the file teeth.

Pull off the sticky tape and the embedded dust and shavings come off with it.

Ralph Moore

Dear Heloise:

To save on fuel bills during the cold months, I tape clear plastic over the outlet of my air conditioning units. It is surprising how much cool air comes in this way during the winter months.

I also find that the plastic keeps the air conditioning filter clean. This is especially true of the types of air conditioners which one leaves in their window the year around.

Doing the Right Thing

By ELIZABETH L. POST of the Emily Post Institute
CAN CONDOLENCE AND
CONGRATULATORY NOTES BE COMBINED?

Dear Mrs. Post: Recently a friend of mine gave birth to her first child after waiting many years. It was a happy occasion only to be saddened by the sudden death of her mother. My problem is how to send congratulations and sympathy at the same time. Would it be proper to send both at once. If not, which would take precedence? Also would a handwritten note be more in order than the usual greeting card?—Janis P.

Dear Janis: One of the most important things about a sympathy note is that it be written immediately. Don't try to combine the two sentiments in one letter. Write the note of condolence—personally—and then when the shock has subsided and your friend can appreciate happier sentiments, send her a card, or a note of congratulations.

Issue Graduation Invitations with Care

Dear Mrs. Post: Our son will be graduating from high school in May. We have quite a few friends that we haven't seen in years, since we moved to another town. We would like to send graduation invitations to them, but would not expect gifts from them. Would it be proper to send them invitations and write on them that no gifts are expected?—Mrs. White

Dear Mrs. White: Most schools are extremely limited in the number of seats available to graduation guests. If you are thinking of inviting old friends to the ceremony itself, don't do it without finding out how many guests each family may invite. If you mean to invite these friends to a party you are planning to give for your son, you may write "No gifts, please" on the invitation, or you may simply send announcements of his graduation. Even these, however, carry a certain implied obligation, so send them only to those whom you think will be truly interested.

Receiving Line at Public Functions

Dear Mrs. Post: When I receive an invitation to attend an opening at our local art museum, is it necessary to go down the receiving line, even when the reception is a very large one and I do not know anyone who is receiving. If so, do I start in the line with an introduction to myself as "Anna Jones" (since this is a semi-social occasion) or as "Mrs. Charles Jones"? Do those in line in turn identify themselves? Do I turn to my husband and introduce him, or does he simply follow me and introduce himself?—Mrs. A. L.

Dear Mrs. L.: If there is a formal receiving line, you should definitely go down it.

Generally this type of line consists of very few people, and more often one or two of the hostesses stand near the door greeting people informally. People going through a formal line are always announced as "Mrs. Charles Jones," or "Mr. and Mrs. Charles Jones." Therefore, use the same forms in introducing yourself. To the first person in line say, "I am Mrs. Charles Jones," and turning back slightly add, "and this is my husband." Those in line should respond by telling you their names.

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Elvin Hayes, once cut from his high school varsity team because he had a "coordination problem," is the college basketball player of the year for 1968.

Hayes, the 6-8 top scorer and rebounder for the No. 1 ranked University of Houston Cougars, won the player of the year award Friday. The two-time All-American senior polled 222½ votes to 41½ for Lew Alcindor, the 7-1½ UCLA star, in an Associated Press poll of 322 sports writers and broadcasters. One voter had the two tied.

Alcindor, who was player of the year last year as a sophomore, was 18 points ahead of Pete Maravich of Louisiana State, the nation's leading scorer, in the voting.

Hayes, nicknamed the "Big E," said being named player of the year "is a great honor."

Hayes, 22, a Rayville, La., native, is considered a top prospect for professional basketball, a desire he has had since childhood.

He says he wants to be recognized as a good basketball player and also as a good person.

"You can be a good ballplayer but if you don't treat people right you're nothing," he said.

He gained national prominence with his 39 points when the Cougars snapped UCLA's 47 game winning streak in January in the Astrodome before more than 50,000 spectators and another 12 million watching on television.

He scored 62 points Feb. 24 in leading Houston to a 158-81 victory over Valparaiso. It was the third highest game score for one team in major college records.

In leading the unbeaten Cougars through 26 games this season he has become the second highest career scorer in college basketball with more than 2,600 points. But he is never completely satisfied.

"I am going to push myself to the limit," he said. "I will never stop working to reach the top."

Melvin Rogers, basketball coach at Eula Britton High School at Rayville, a town of 6,000 in the cotton country of northeast Louisiana, was the one who cut Hayes from the varsity his second year.

"He was a gangling kid, all hands and feet," Rogers recalled. "He had a coordination problem so I suggested he work out with the junior varsity until he improved."

Rogers said Hayes worked hard and it paid off. Britton was runner-up in the state tournament Hays' junior year and won the championship his senior year.

Thirty-three colleges tried to recruit him.

DEAR ABBY: My son (a junior in high school) is getting to be a very clever thief. We give him a generous allowance, and if he asked for anything extra, we would be glad to give it to him, but he doesn't ask, he just helps himself. He doesn't "need" anything. He just steals for the thrill of stealing.

I know he has been in my purse and stolen money. And I have seen him take money from his father's wallet. He has stolen little things from his friends, and now I find that he's taken things from the grocery store, drugstore and other places of business.

I keep finding things in his room that I know he didn't buy. I have even threatened to take him to the police station to fight him, but nothing helps. Am I raising a criminal? Please help me.

DEAR MOTHER: A child who steals for the "thrill" of stealing needs professional help. He can be frightened out if he's taken in hand early. Threatening him with the police is unwise. A policeman should be identified as a friend who protects us and our property.

not an "enemy" who would take pleasure in punishing our wrongdoing. Ask your family doctor whom to see about this boy.

DEAR ABBY: Isn't it true that if two people dance well together it means they are "in tune" and "meant for" each other?

I heard somewhere that if a boy and girl dance well together they will probably have other things in common and will most likely have a successful marriage. Please confirm this.

LOVES TO DANCE
DEAR ABBY: When two people dance well together, it means only one thing. They dance well together. Believe me, it means nothing else. If you are using "dancing" as a basis for compatibility in marriage, forget it.

DEAR ABBY: Our son is getting married soon and being as how he never made it in college we would like to give him a large sum of money for a wedding gift.

It says in the book of etiquette that checks given to brides and grooms should not be put on display with the rest of the wedding gifts.

My husband doesn't go along with this. He feels that since we are giving the newlyweds so much money we should be given full credit for it.

What is your opinion?
GROOM'S MOTHER:
DEAR ABBY: Checks should not be "on display" along with the other wedding gifts. The book of etiquette recommends displaying only the amount, but covering the signature, which strikes me as being pretty ridiculous. And anyone who gives a large sum of money as a gift and wants to make sure he gets "full credit" for it will, because he's the type who will tell everyone he knows.

DEAR ABBY: To the "GUEST WITH A GIFT" who complained of eating home-made cake at a wedding reception, while a "beautiful" wedding cake stood untouched on the buffet table:

You wouldn't have had any better luck at our silver wedding reception. We also had a three-tier beautiful "wedding" cake on our buffet table, but we didn't offer anyone a piece. It was a "baker's dummy" made of plaster of paris, loaned to us for the occasion, and intended for decoration only.

Sincerely, THE ODD COUPLE

East's Shrug Helps South

By Oswald and James Jacoby

This didn't affect the early play. Jais took his ace of clubs and finessed hearts — unsuspiciously. East returned a heart. Jais took dummy's ace and led a heart to his own hand to pull East's last trump.

At this point Jais went back to that shrug by East and also to East's double of six hearts. Obviously East wasn't doubling on his king of trumps. He must have been using an unusual lead. It might have been for a spade but a diamond lead would have been even more unusual. Of course, East had wanted a diamond lead.

There is a normal safety play with this diamond holding which is to lead the king first. Then if East did show out the double finesse would be marked. Jais started to lead the king, then noted that if he did that West could play the 10 of diamonds on the second lead of the suit and Jais would have to lead another trump to get back to his own hand. He could run diamonds and discard a spade but would players be left with a losing club.

Desperate measures were necessary. Jais knew that the would look mighty silly if the game. He uses it to describe wrong but he wanted to make his going on around the table and led a low diamond toward dummy. West did the best he could. He played his seven of diamonds but Jais finessed dummy's nine!

Pierre Jais is the greatest bridge player in France and one of the greatest in the world. Unlike many great tournament players he prefers rubber bridge to duplicate.

He played today's hand some years ago in a rubber bridge game. He uses it to describe wrong but he wanted to make his going on around the table and led a low diamond toward dummy. West did the best he could. He played his seven of diamonds but Jais finessed dummy's nine!

His own story is that when West opened a club East shrugged his shoulders a trifle as if to say, "What can you do with such a partner?"

The Army lieutenant, a man whose pussillanimous action under enemy fire resulted in the death of three soldiers, was ordered to explain his conduct. The older brother advised his sister to select a husband who was honest and true, but to avoid those men who appeared insincere or pussillanimous. The airplane pilot's pussillanimous behavior during an in-flight emergency almost caused the loss of the entire aircraft.

LOVES TO DANCE
DEAR ABBY: When two people dance well together, it means only one thing. They dance well together. Believe me, it means nothing else. If you are using "dancing" as a basis for compatibility in marriage, forget it.

DEAR ABBY: Our son is getting married soon and being as how he never made it in college we would like to give him a large sum of money for a wedding gift.

It says in the book of etiquette that checks given to brides and grooms should not be put on display with the rest of the wedding gifts.

My husband doesn't go along with this. He feels that since we are giving the newlyweds so much money we should be giving him full credit for it.

What is your opinion?
GROOM'S MOTHER:
DEAR MOTHER: Checks should not be "on display" along with the other wedding gifts. The book of etiquette recommends displaying only the amount, but covering the signature, which strikes me as being pretty ridiculous. And anyone who gives a large sum of money as a gift and wants to make sure he gets "full credit" for it will, because he's the type who will tell everyone he knows.

DEAR ABBY: To the "GUEST WITH A GIFT" who complained of eating homemade cake at a wedding reception, while a "beautiful" wedding cake stood untouched on the buffet table.

You wouldn't have had any better luck at our silver wedding reception. We also had a three-tiered beautiful "wedding" cake on our buffet table, but we didn't offer anyone a piece. It was a "baker's dummy" made of plaster of paris, loaned to us for the occasion, and intended for decoration only.

Sincerely, THE ODD COUPLE

Bridge
East's Shrug Helps South

By Oswald and James Jacoby

This didn't affect the early play. Jais took his ace of clubs and finessed hearts unsuccessfully. East returned a heart. Jais took dummy's ace and led a heart to his own hand to pull East's last trump.

At this point Jais went back to that shrug by East and also to East's double of six hearts. Obviously East wasn't doubling on his king of trumps. He must have been using a Lightner slam double to ask for an unusual lead. It might have been for a spade but a diamond lead would have been even more unusual. Of course, East had wanted a diamond lead.

There is a normal safety play with this diamond holding which is to lead the king first. Then if East did show out the double finesse would be marked. Jais started to lead the king, then noted that if he did that West could play the 10 of diamonds on the second lead of the suit and Jais would have to lead another trump to get back to his own hand. He could run diamonds. Unlike many great tournament players he prefers rubber bridge to duplicate.

He played today's hard some years ago in a rubber bridge game. He uses it to describe play he intended to make went how a man who is alert to what wrong but he wanted to make is going on around the table can profit by it.

His own story is that when West opened a club East shrugged his shoulders a trifle as if to say, "What can you do with such a partner."

DESPERATE MEASURES were necessary. Jais knew that he years ago in a rubber bridge game. He uses it to describe play he intended to make went how a man who is alert to what wrong but he wanted to make is going on around the table can profit by it.

Clark Gable: A Sure TV Bet

By DEAN GYSEL

Chicago Daily News Service

If Clark Gable were in his prime today he would make an ideal television hero, according to a man who has spent almost a year preparing "Dear Mr. Gable," a documentary to be televised on Tuesday, March 5, by NBC.

"He was an excellent hero," said producer Nicolas Noxon of MGM Studios, the seat of Gable's reign as the "King" of Hollywood during the 30s and 40s.

Had Stamina, Control

"He had the stamina and control needed for a TV grind," said Noxon. Although Noxon credits Gable with being "a better actor than was realized," he concedes that Gable was essentially one-dimensional on screen.

Gable was Gable no matter whom he portrayed. "He had dialog, not soliloquies. There was no character change, no problem he could not handle. It was up to the woman or Spencer Tracy to agonize. Gable was solid and constant while everything revolved around him."

I can see the TV series now: "King of the Mississippi." Gable plays Rance Stark, a riverboat gambler with a black frock coat, white hat, long thin cigar and a Derringer in his vest.

He has a girl in every port. Edgar Buchanan is Captain Andy, the riverboat captain and comic relief. Tab Hunter is Buchanan's fumbling son who hero-worships Rance.

In the premiere, Gable makes television love (as opposed to believable love) to Claire Trevor, landlady of a rest shop in Natchez, and recurring character; and to Marie Windsor.

Its Distinction

With a population of 123,500, the city of Kingston, Jamaica, ranks as the western hemisphere's largest English-speaking city south of Miami, Fla.

an adventuress whom he ditches with a rough grin after shooting her card sharp partner, Jack (Lash) Larue.

Movies Something Else

But in the movies today, with the accent on introspective, anti-heroes, Gable "would not do as well," said Noxon.

"He would be an outsider. He would raise his right eyebrow and sneer. He disliked introspection. There would be few movies he would like today. He had a black and white morality. Gable would think 'Bonnie and Clyde' is sick."

Gable was "cool" but in a different sense of the word. Contrast his lightheartedness with the cool intensity of Paul Newman.

Gable was an anti-hero in "Gone With the Wind," but his was a highly romanticized characterization.

Believing his screen image,

Gable "was not a great womanizer in his personal life," said Noxon. "He was quite casual with women, very conventional."

He liked playing cards and golf—a man's man.

Gable acted in 67 films. His first talkie was "The Painted Desert" in 1931 with Helen Twelvetrees.

During the 30s, he was nominated for three Academy Awards: "It Happened One Night," 1934, for which he won best actor; "Mutiny on the Bounty," 1935; and "Gone With the Wind," 1939.

Noxon said Gable's only really bad movie was "Parnell," in which he tried unsuccessfully to play an Irish patriot with an Irish accent.

Never Same Mistake

"He didn't make the same mistake twice," said Noxon. "He came to Metro and Hollywood at the right time. He was used as he should have been used.

Besides the movie career, Noxon said, "Dear Mr. Gable" also will deal with Gable's more dramatic moments: His wives, World War II participation, his despondency over the death of his third wife, Carole Lombard, and his return to fame in the 1950s.

Gable would seem to be a curiosity piece now but Noxon said he "sensed awareness among the youth. To them Gable was something of a sex-pot."

Gable was the unchallenged "King," but of what? said Noxon: "He was the all-time record-holder but it's hard to define what is the record."

The title of the show, "Dear Mr. Gable," stems from a song by Judy Garland in a movie, "Broadway Melody of 1933."

Clark Gable: A Sure TV Bet

By DEAN GYSEL

Chicago Daily News Service

If Clark Gable were in his prime today he would make an ideal television hero, according to a man who has spent almost a year preparing "Dear Mr.

Gable," a documentary to be televised on Tuesday, March 5, by NBC.

"He was an excellent hero," said producer Nicolas Noxon of

MGM Studios, the seat of Gable's reign as the "King of

Hollywood during the 30s and 40s.

Had Stamina, Control

"He had the stamina and control needed for a TV grind," said Noxon. Although Noxon credits Gable with being "a better actor than was realized," he concedes that Gable was essentially one-dimensional on screen.

Gable was Gable no matter whom he portrayed. "He had no character change, no problem he could not handle. It was up to the woman or Spencer Tracy to agonize. Gable was solid and constant while everything revolved around him."

I can see the TV series now:

"King of the Mississippi." Gable plays Rance Stark, a riverboat

gambler with a black frock coat, white hat, long thin cigar and a Derringer in his vest.

He has a girl in every port.

Edgar Buchanan is Captain

Andy, the riverboat captain and comic relief. Tab Hunter is Buchanan's fumbling son who hero-worships Rance.

In the premiere, Gable makes television love (as opposed to believable love) to Claire Trevor, landlady of a rest shop in

Natchez, and a recurring character; and to Marie Windsor.

Its Distinction

With a population of 123,500, ranks as the western hemisphere's largest English-speaking city south of Miami,

Movies Something Else

But in the movies today, with the accent on introspective, anti-heroes, Gable "would not do as well," said Noxon.

"He would be an outsider. He would raise his right eyebrow and sneer. He disliked introspection. There would be few movies he would like today. He had a black and white morality.

Gable would think "Bonnie and

Clyde" is sick."

Gable was "cool" but in a different sense of the word.

Contrast his lightheartedness with the cool intensity of Paul

Newman.

Gable was an anti-hero in

"Gone With the Wind," but his was a highly romanticized characterization.

Believing his screen image,

Gable "was not a great womanizer in his personal life," said

Noxon. "He was quite casual with women, very conventional." He liked playing cards and golf—a man's man.

Gable acted in 67 films. His

THE NORTON PLAN for reapportionment has had surprisingly smooth sailing through the courts. Judge Kane, a Republican, passed it as did the Republican-dominated Appellate Court. Passage in the State Court of Appeals is expected after Wednesday's hearing.

Once the plan goes into effect in the city some interesting matchups will occur. Several aldermen, as pointed out in Tuesday's Freeman, will be running against each other.

First, there's the veteran John Naccarato, three-term Third Ward alderman, against the Council's youngest member, Frank Jablonski, who beat Emilio Primo, the Fourth Ward Democrat in November. In this case it's a rookie against veteran and we've got to give a decided edge to Naccarato. The question is whether Naccarato can bring the Republicans back together after a primary with Jablonski who says he will put up a stiff fight. The Democrats have high hopes of retiring Naccarato. He won a narrow victory over Stan Petro in the old Third Ward in November after cruising in his first two terms.

THE RACE between Florence Ludlow and Pete Fisher in new Ward Four figures to be a tossup. Both are rookies and are still getting their feet wet in the Council. Fisher has been the more vocal of the two but Mrs. Ludlow is a solid campaigner, proving it by beating George Margolis who has a solid record in the Council.

An interesting race should develop between Ed Norton and Pucker Davis, running in the new 13th Ward. Both were just about automatic for election in their old wards but it looks like Ed has the edge in the new ward as most of its population comes from his old Seventh Ward. Don't count Pucker out, though. He's been in the Council ten years (senior member) and has expressed no desire of leaving now.

All in all, the reapportionment plan looks pretty fair. There are four "safe" wards. John Machione and Bobby Schantz should breeze back in as should Pete Mancuso and Jim Madden. Of the other nine, the Democrats figure to win two, the Republicans, two. The rest are up for grabs.

HARRY THAYER for assembly may be a tough campaign for the radio editorialist especially when county officials start dredging up some of those editorials.

People like "Glad Hand" Spada (Albert Spada), "Czar Peter the First" (Pete Savago) and "The Fiddlers 33" may not be too eager to back Harry. Republican lawyers, justices of the peace and judges didn't appreciate Harry's blasts about "lace panty justice."

We'd like to see a race between Harry and Ray Garrahan. Harry calls Ray "Moonshot" and Ray calls Harry "Flannel Mouth." Moonshot versus Flannel Mouth. Egad!

HALL MARKS—Dorothy Cunningham, senior account clerk in the city treasurer's office in Albany Medical Center. Said Treasurer Petro, "Dorothy has been with the treasurer's office for 30 years and I can readily see why. We all hope she'll be back with us soon."

Gene Dillon, man in charge of traffic in the city hall parking lot, has been getting writer's cramp lately. Acting Mayor Gallo has issued orders to ticket illegally parked cars after fair warning.

Speaking of T. Robert, his name has been mentioned frequently for the assembly. Bob is non-committal as is Ray Garraghan on either the assembly or congress. If both should run it would bring out a glaring omission in the city charter—lack of laws on succession. After the alderman at-large, there's nothing on the books to say who takes over. It is understood that the Common Council majority leader is third in line. But who's fourth? Fifth? Civil defense officials have been urging the city for some time to set up a chain of succession in case of nuclear attack. The Council should act on this matter, post haste.

Taxpayers Get Reprieves In Three Upstate Cities

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — The new fiscal year—in this case, the old adage that nothing is sure in life but death and taxes was proved partially wrong in three upstate cities, as shoppers in Ogdensburg, Olean and Salamanca gained reprieves from new sales levies.

Joseph H. Murphy, state tax commissioner, said Friday he had been advised by Atty. Gen. Louis J. Lefkowitz that merchants in the three cities would not have to collect the municipal taxes.

All were to have taken effect Friday. In the City of Ogdensburg, the administration's failure to comply with a law requiring public hearings in advance of new taxes meant a three per cent sales tax passed by the Common Council could not be imposed.

The levies in Olean and Salamanca did not go into effect because Cattaraugus County, which embraces both cities, enacted its own sales tax last Nov. 21.

If a county already has a sales tax, cities within the county may not enact sales taxes of their own unless they give the county notice of their intention to do so at least six months before the start of the county's fiscal year.

Resnick Strikes Back At Wall Street Journal

By JEAN F. DOLAN

Rep. Joseph Y. Resnick has lashed out at a national newspaper from the floor of Congress.

Defending his trip to Southeast Asia, the Ellenville Congressman scored the Wall Street Journal for its account of his tour in Vietnam and subsequent refusal to publish his rebuttal either as a letter to the editor or as a full-page advertisement. The article appeared in the Jan. 25 issue of Dow Jones & Co. publication under the byline of Peter Kann. When the newspaper refused to publish Resnick's letter, he attempted to purchase advertising space for $6,588 "to defend his reputation." The ad was refused. Speaking before the House, Resnick refuted the article detail by detail. He contended the account "contained many inaccuracies and was highly prejudicial to my personal integrity and reputation."

Resnick said, "I did not invite Peter Kann or any other correspondent to travel with me in Vietnam. Kann called me immediately after I arrived in Saigon and asked if he could accompany me. I gladly agreed, never dreaming that he planned such a tapestry of bias, distortion and half-truths."

Calling "what started out as a criticism of 'canned' briefings and receptions for VIPs a hatchet job on me," Resnick blamed Kann's feelings on Vietnam and the administration.

Several times in his discourse, Resnick noted that the reporter disagreed with the administration on Vietnam policy. "We had many discussions about the President, the war and America's role in Southeast Asia. Mr. Kann bitterly opposes many of them," Resnick said in his introductory remarks.

Purpose Is Discredit — "We argued these issues for many hours, never did I think our differences would erupt into a prejudiced story whose obvious purpose is to discredit me."

In conclusion, Resnick underscored this saying "presumably because of our intense disagreement over Administration policy in Vietnam and perhaps his (Kann's) own displeasure with the military," prompted the story in which "he committed every sin of omission and distortion that a skilled writer is capable of."

As to the Wall Street Journal, Resnick accused that august publication of feeling free to "thumb its nose at its public responsibilities."

Reuther Calls Caucus With Union Chiefs

By NEIL GILBRIDE
AP Labor Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Auto Workers President Walter Reuther has called a private caucus to lay before other union chiefs his bitter charges against AFL-CIO President George Meany's leadership of American labor.

For more than a year, Reuther has been describing that leadership as "undemocratic," "complacent," "vegetating" and "stagnant."

"I want to talk with you about the differences between the Auto Workers and the AFL-CIO," Reuther said in telegrams inviting several union presidents to the caucus in New York's Roosevelt Hotel March 8. Reuther appears nearing a decision on whether to pull his 1.5 million Auto Workers out of the 14-million-member AFL-CIO in what would be a major schism in labor's ranks.

Confirm Receipt

Although it was not known how many invitations to the New York meeting went out, presidents of three AFL-CIO unions confirmed receiving them.

They are Max Greenberg of the Retail, Wholesale and Department Store Union; William Pollock, of the Textile Workers Union of America; and Charles Cogen of the American Federation of Teachers.

Some telegrams inviting union presidents were sent without stating the reason. Others said Reuther wanted to discuss his split with Meany, the man with whom he joined to merge the American Federation of Labor and Congress of Industrial Organizations into the AFL-CIO in 1955.

Reuther and his Auto Workers Executive Board are meeting this weekend in Detroit, where union sources say Reuther may demand a special AFL-CIO convention or a meeting of the presidents of its 128 affiliated unions to discuss his demands for reform and "revitalization" of the labor federation.

The New York caucus called by Reuther mystified many labor leaders, and some union presidents were notable for their absence on Reuther's invitation list.

Some speculated Reuther was calling a caucus of former unions of the CIO, which Reuther headed before the merger with Meany's AFL.

"If somebody was trying to set up a CIO caucus, I can understand why I wasn't invited," said President Joseph A. Beirne of the Communications Workers of America which was in the old CIO.

"I don't think there is a CIO any more," Beirne added. "I thought the CIO was merged with the AFL in 1955."

But the invitation of Cogen, whose teachers' federation was an AFL union before the merger, appeared to indicate the Reuther caucus was broader than just former CIO friends.

Precedes Convention

The New York meeting precedes the March 11 opening of the convention in Washington of the AFL-CIO's Industrial Union Department. Reuther's last power base in the federation, he resigned as an AFL-CIO vice president and all other federation posts more than a year ago.

Reuther's decision to stay in or leave the AFL-CIO is considered to whether he runs for reelection as president of the Industrial Union Department, which embraces more than 50 unions with some 6 million members.

The Industrial Union Department the past year virtually liquidated long-standing reserves of more than $2 million.

The money has gone for organizing drives and strike assistance to other unions while the Auto Workers cut off their once substantial financial contributions to the department.

In effect, the Auto Workers union has been spending its own money out of the Industrial Union Department treasury to help other unions.

Mrs. Calvin W. Parrow, postmaster of the western Ulster County community, said the residents, especially the children, will miss Jerry who made

In Draft Dodging

California Leads

WASHINGTON (AP) — California far outstrips any other state in the number of convicted draft dodgers as draft law violations continue to mount nationally.

A state-by-state breakdown of convictions made public today by the Justice Department showed 789 convictions in the United States in the year that ended last June 30, with 170-23 per cent—in California alone.

The breakdown by states, first such accounting to be made by the department, was produced at the request of The Associated Press.

It underscored a buildup in the number of draft-law violations and more intensive investigative activities by the Justice Department and the Selective Service System.

Signs of the increased government response included:

The head of the Justice Department team that obtained the indictments of Dr. Benjamin Spock and four others on charges of conspiracy to counsel draft evasion said the group is investigating every major anti-draft demonstration in which it is suspected there may be violations of federal law.

The Selective Service System is recalling to active duty several reserve officers who are lawyers to help handle the burgeoning number of draft law violation cases, a result of higher draft calls.

The Justice Department's computer listed 1,424 draft cases filed during the fiscal year that ended last June 30—the latest figures available. There were 789 convictions.

New York, although the second largest state, had fewer convictions—37—than three smaller states: Ohio, had 48, Oregon 46 and Florida 39.

Heavy Winds Uproot Trees, Litter Streets

Heavy winds pounded this area for a second night and uprooted trees in some sections and littered streets in the city with large tree limbs that were ripped off.

A spokesman for the Kingston Board of Public Works said large tree branches were felled in the vicinity of St. James Street, East O'Reilly Street and Broadway, Wilbur Avenue and near 164 Fair Street.

Crews of workmen were sent out to remove the debris.

County Highway Department crews early today cleared a section of Route 213 near Atwood of a tree that was uprooted and covered about five feet of the pavement. A department spokesman also said a large tree fell in front of the Paul Farm in Lomontville.

Gusts of wind exceeded 30 miles an hour at times, it was reported. Signs were blown down in some areas and refuse cans were frequently seen being rolled along streets by the wind.

Power Pool To Be Topic Of Engineers

The winter meeting of the Power Chapter of the Mid-Hudson Section, Institute of Electrical and Electronics Engineers, will be held on Tuesday, March 12 at 7:30 p. m. in the Central Hudson auditorium, South Road, Poughkeepsie.

The program will feature two speakers covering various aspects of the New York Power Pool. John R. Vogel, superintendent, System Operations, Central Hudson, and Acting Manager, New York Power Pool, will discuss the organization and operating aspects of the pool, including the new Power Control Center to be constructed near Albany. Salvatore A. Tilaro, engineer, Electric Planning, Central Hudson, will discuss future planning studies of the New York State interconnected systems.

All persons interested in the electrical power field, including non-members, may attend.

Gets $25 Fine

Charged with a Conservation Law violation for having a loaded gun in his car David Schneider, 20, of 17 Pine Grove Street, Woodstock, was arrested Friday night by State Troopers Robert Malloy and R. G. Bergin.

Taken before Woodstock Town Justice Joseph Forno, Schneider pleaded guilty and was fined $25, which was paid. Troopers said they found a .22 caliber rifle in the car when stopped on Mill Hill Road in Woodstock.

Sundown Saddened - - Its Pet Deer Killed

Sundown, a tiny community in the Town of Denning, was saddened this week by the untimely death of its pet deer, Jerry, who was struck down by a car Wednesday, two days after his picture appeared in The Freeman.

Mrs. Calvin W. Parrow, postmaster of the western Ulster County community, said the residents, especially the children, will miss Jerry who made

Justice Department officials were uncertain why California led the list but attributed it partly to California's large youthful population, its many college students, and its sizable transient population.

Judges are handing out stiffer sentences. The average sentence last year was 32.1 months. This compared with 26.4 months in 1966 and 21 months in 1965.

The latest Justice Department list also shows 174 cases dismissed. One official who works closely with Selective Service cases estimated more than 90 per cent of dismissals result from individuals deciding to comply with the law and accept induction into the armed forces after they are faced with indictment and the prospect of going to trial.

Most government cases against persons charged with violating Selective Service laws are handled locally by U.S. attorneys. The tougher ones are reviewed at department headquarters in Washington by two units that deal with draft cases.

Nearly three months ago the department set up a special unit on Selective Service cases headed by John Van de Kamp.

This unit handles mainly the biggest cases dealing with individuals who counsel others to avoid the draft. It works closely with the Federal Bureau of Investigation and evaluates intelligence on organized draft resistance and on other antidraft activities.

Nab Three Students For $125G Prank

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — Three Rochester Institute of Technology students who, police said, took a $125,000 oil painting from Clarkson College of Technology as a fraternity prank, were held in jail today on fugitive warrants.

Rochester detectives sent the trio to the city lockup Friday after their arrest to await the arrival of police from Potsdam.

Det. Capt. James Cavoti said the three young men told police they decided to take the painting, a 200-year-old portrait of George Washington by Gilbert Stuart, as a prank while on a fraternity pledge trip to Clarkson last weekend.

"They said they planned first to take a large, standup ashtray as a souvenir. Now they wish they had," Cavoti said.

The three were Steven K. Landress, a 21-year-old senior from Deer Park, L. I.; and Stephen Pazian of Amherst and Daniel Bostwick, both 18-year-old freshmen.

The painting disappeared Sunday from Lewis House, a student union building at Clarkson, and was recovered unharmed Tuesday night in the Episcopal Church of the Ascension in downtown Buffalo after an insurance investigator received an anonymous telephone call.

The students brought the painting back to the Rochester Tech campus, and from research in the college library, figured that it was worth $12,000, Cavoti said.

Upon learning from news reports that the portrait was valued at more than 10 times their estimate, he added, they became scared and decided to get rid of it.

Detectives said they learned the name of one of the suspects from State Police in Potsdam and identified the others after further investigation.

Other students who made the fraternity trip would be questioned, they added.

Cavoti said he was satisfied that there was no connection between the Clarkson "prank" and the theft of a valuable Rembrandt painting from the Eastman House Museum in Rochester Jan. 31. That painting still is missing.

Pazian lives at 24 Marlee Drive.

State of N.Y. Bank in Merge With Fallkill

State of New York National Bank, Kingston, merged Friday with The Fallkill National Bank and Trust Company, Poughkeepsie. Recently regulatory authorities as well as stockholders and directors of the two banks gave their approval.

The resulting bank, The State of New York National Bank, is a member of Bankers Trust New York Corporation, the bank holding company which owned the Fallkill National Bank and Trust Company.

The president of the new bank is A. Raymond Atkins, and John W. Kelly is executive vice president. They are both members of the board of directors which includes Erik Aldeburgh, Claude M. Conger, Vincent G. Connelly, Edward W. Demarest, Roscoe W. Elsworth, Charles G. Garrett, Edward K. Haas, Robert H. Herzog, Edward J. Mack, George C. Marcus, Douw S. Meyers, Amos R. Newcombe, A. Allendorph Schoonmaker, II, Andrew J. Snyder, Everett E. Spoor and Harold L. Wood.

The State of New York National Bank, founded in 1853, had deposits of $34,000,000 on Dec. 31, 1967. It has six offices in Ulster County. The Fallkill National Bank and Trust Company, with three offices in Dutchess County, had deposits of $19,000,000 at year end.

Bankers Trust New York Corporation, the country's second largest holding company, includes Bankers Trust Company, New York, First Trust Company of Albany, The First State Bank of Rockland County, and The State of New York National Bank.

Two Upstaters Killed in Viet

Army Spec. 4 Nicholas P. Ligamari of Lakewood, near Jamestown, was among three servicemen from upstate New York whose deaths in South Vietnam were reported Friday.

Ligamari, 27, was injured fatally Feb. 20 in a truck accident attributed by an Army spokesman to brake failure.

Ligamari entered the Army in March 1959, but had been in South Vietnam only since January.

He leaves his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph C. Ligamari, and his widow, Mun Heang, originally of Seoul, South Korea. Ligamari had served previously in Korea and West Germany.

The Defense Department also reported the deaths of Army Spec. 4 Leon E. Waters Jr. of Oneonta, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leon Waters Sr., and Marine Spec. 4 James H. Milich of Cornwall-on-Hudson, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Milich.

City Beat

By HUGH REYNOLDS
Freeman City Hall Reporter

THE NORTON PLAN for reapportionment has had surprisingly smooth sailing through the courts. Judge Kane, a Republican, passed it as did the Republican-dominated Appellate Court. Passage in the State Court of Appeals is expected after Wednesday's hearing.

Once the plan goes into effect in the city some interesting matchups will occur. Several aldermen, as pointed out in Tuesday's Freeman, will be running against each other.

First, there's the veteran John Naccarato, three-term Third Ward alderman, against the Council's youngest member, Frank Jablonski, who beat Emilio Primo, the Fourth Ward Democrat in November. In this case it's rookie against veteran and we've got to give a decided edge to Naccarato. The question is whether Naccarato can bring the Republicans back together after a primary with Jablonski who says he will put up a stiff fight. The Democrats have high hopes of retiring Naccarato. He won a narrow victory over Stan Petro in the old Third Ward in November after cruising in his first two terms.

THE RACE between Florence Ludlow and Pete Fisher in new Ward Four figures to be a tossup. Both are rookies and are still getting their feet wet in the Council. Fisher has been the more vocal of the two but Mrs. Ludlow is a solid campaigner, proving it by beating George Margolis who has a solid record in the Council.

An interesting race should develop between Ed Norton and Pucker Davis, running in the new 13th Ward. Both were just about automatic for election in their old wards but it looks like Ed has the edge in the new ward as most of its population comes from his old Seventh Ward. Don't count Pucker out, though. He's been in the Council ten years (senior member) and has expressed no desire of leaving now.

All in all, the reapportionment plan looks pretty fair. There are four "safe" wards. John Machione and Bobby Schantz should breeze back in as should Pete Mancuso and Jim Madden. Of the other nine, the Democrats figure to win two, the Republicans, two. The rest are up for grabs.

HARRY THAYER for assembly may be a tough campaign for the radio editorialist especially when county officials start dredging up some of those editorials.

People like "Glad Hand" Spada (Albert Spada), "Czar Peter the First" (Pete Savago) and "The Fiddlers 33" may not be too eager to back Harry. Republican lawyers, justices of the peace and judges didn't appreciate Harry's blasts about "lace panty justice."

We'd like to see a race between Harry and Ray Garrahan. Harry calls Ray "Moonshot" and Ray calls Harry "Flannel Mouth." Moonshot versus Flannel Mouth. Egad!

HALL MARKS—Dorothy Cunningham, senior account clerk in the city treasurer's office in Albany Medical Center. Said Treasurer Petro, "Dorothy has been with the treasurer's office for 30 years and I can readily see why. We all hope she'll be back with us soon."

Gene Dillon, man in charge of traffic in the city hall parking lot, has been getting writer's cramp lately. Acting Mayor Gallo has issued orders to ticket illegally parked cars after fair warning.

Speaking of T. Robert, his name has been mentioned frequently for the assembly. Bob is non-committal as is Ray Garrahan on either the assembly or congress. If both should run it would bring out a glaring omission in the city charter—lack of laws on succession. After the alderman at-large, there's nothing on the books to say who takes over. It is understood that the Common Council majority leader is third in line. But who's fourth? Fifth? Civil defense officials have been urging the city for some time to set up a chain of succession in case of nuclear attack. The Council should act on this matter, post haste.

Taxpayers Get Reprieves In Three Upstate Cities

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — The new fiscal year—in this case, Jan. 1, 1968. Olean and Salamanca must wait until March 1, 1969, unless county officials waive the notification requirement.

Merchants selling taxable goods or services in the three cities had to collect the combined state and county sales tax of five per cent, however.

Joseph H. Murphy, state tax commissioner, said Friday he had been advised by Atty. Gen. Louis J. Lefkowitz that merchants in the three cities would not have to collect the municipal taxes.

All were to have taken effect Friday. In the City of Ogdensburg, the administration's failure to comply with a law requiring public hearings in advance of new taxes meant a three per cent sales tax passed by the Common Council could not be imposed.

The levies in Olean and Salamanca did not go into effect because Cattaraugus County, which embraces both cities, enacted its own sales tax last Nov. 21.

If a county already has a sales tax, cities within the county may not enact sales taxes of their own unless they give the county notice of their intention to do so at least six months before the start of the county's fiscal year.

Resnick Strikes Back At Wall Street Journal

By JEAN F. DOLAN

Rep. Joseph Y. Resnick has lashed out at a national newspaper from the floor of Congress.

Defending his trip to Southeast Asia, the Ellenville Congressman scored the Wall Street Journal for its account of his tour in Vietnam and subsequent refusal to publish his rebuttal either as a letter to the editor or as a full-page advertisement.

The article appeared in the Jan. 25 issue of Dow Jones & Co. publication under the byline of Peter Kann. When the newspaper refused to publish Resnick's letter, he attempted to purchase advertising space for $6,588 "to defend his reputation." The ad was refused. Speaking before the House, Resnick refuted the article detail by detail. He contended the account "contained many inaccuracies and was highly prejudicial to my personal integrity and reputation."

Resnick said, "I did not invite Peter Kann or any other correspondent to travel with me in Vietnam. Kann called me immediately after I arrived in Saigon and asked if he could accompany me. I gladly agreed, never dreaming that he planned such a tapestry of bias, distortion and half-truths."

Calling "what started out as a criticism of 'canned' briefings and receptions for VIPs a hatchet job on me," Resnick blamed Kann's feelings on Vietnam and the administration.

Several times in his discourse, Resnick noted that the reporter disagreed with the administration on Vietnam policy. "We had many discussions about the President, the war and America's role in Southeast Asia. Mr. Kann bitterly opposes many of them," Resnick said in his introductory remarks.

Purpose Is Discredited "We argued these issues for many hours, never did I think our differences would erupt into a prejudiced story whose obvious purpose is to discredit me."

In conclusion, Resnick underscored this saying "presumably because of our intense disagreement over Administration policy in Vietnam and perhaps his (Kann's) own displeasure with the military" prompted the story in which "he committed every sin of omission and distortion that a skilled writer is capable of."

As to the Wall Street Journal, Resnick accused that august publication of feeling free to "thumb its nose at its public responsibilities."

In Draft Dodging

California Leads

WASHINGTON (AP) — California far outstrips any other state in the number of convicted draft dodgers as draft law violations continue to mount nationally.

A state-by-state breakdown of convictions made public today by the Justice Department showed 789 convictions in the United States in the year that ended last June 30, with 170-23 per cent—in California alone.

The breakdown by states, first such accounting to be made by the department, was produced at the request of The Associated Press.

It underscored a buildup in the number of draft-law violations and more intensive investigative activities by the Justice Department and the Selective Service System.

Signs of the increased government response included:

—The head of the Justice Department team that obtained the indictments of Dr. Benjamin Spock and four others on charges of conspiracy to counsel draft evasion said the group is investigating every major anti-draft demonstration in which it is suspected there may be violations of federal law.

—The Selective Service System is recalling to active duty several reserve officers who are lawyers to help handle the burgeoning number of draft law violation cases, a result of higher draft calls.

The Justice Department's computer listed 1,424 draft cases filed during the fiscal year that ended last June 30—the latest figures available. There were 789 convictions.

New York, although the second largest state, had fewer convictions—37—than three smaller states: Ohio, had 48; Oregon 46 and Florida 39.

Heavy Winds

Uproot Trees, Litter Streets

Heavy winds pounded this area for a second night and uprooted trees in some sections and littered streets in the city with large tree limbs that were ripped off.

A spokesman for the Kingston Board of Public Works said large tree branches were felled in the vicinity of St. James Street, East O'Reilly Street and Broadway, Wilbur Avenue and near 164 Fair Street.

Crews of workmen were sent out to remove the debris.

County Highway Department crews early today cleared a section of Route 213 near Atwood of a tree that was uprooted and covered about five feet of the pavement. A department spokesman also said a large tree fell in front of the Paul Farm in Lomontville.

Gusts of wind exceeded 30 miles an hour at times, it was reported.

Signs were blown down in some areas and refuse cans were frequently seen being rolled along streets by the wind.

Some speculated Reuther was calling a caucus of former unionists of the CIO, which Reuther headed before the merger with Meany's AFL.

"If somebody was trying to set up a CIO caucus, I can understand why I wasn't invited," said President Joseph A. Beirne of the Communications Workers of America which was in the old CIO.

"I don't think there is a CIO any more," Beirne added. "I thought the CIO was merged with the AFL in 1955."

But the invitation of Cogen, whose teachers' federation was an AFL union before the merger, appeared to indicate the Reuther caucus was broader than just former CIO friends.

TAP Turns to 8mm Film-Making

Keeping in tune with the times, the spring 1968 session of TAP (Talented Art Program) is offering several classes that are new and contemporary in concept. Sociologists are pretty well in agreement that film-making is becoming more and more the voice of the young people of today. For that reason, TAP's film-making workshop deserves praise as a pioneering effort locally.

Teaching the basic techniques of 8mm film-making is new instructor Albert Anderson of the faculty of SUNY, New Paltz. His students will plan, script, shoot and edit their own films. Those with special interests will work with animation, time-lapse photography, and experimental film making. The history and development of cinema as an art will also be studied.

Anderson's group has a well-equipped meeting place. Sessions are held in the photography laboratory of the Fine Arts Building, State University College, New Paltz. The 8mm cameras, projectors, and other equipment for this workshop have been furnished by Eastman Kodak Company, Rochester, which will also send in an educational specialist to work with Anderson and the class in developing visual perceptions and manual skills.

Urban and New

TAP's new spring session also features the first urban workshop in this unique program for artistically talented students in the Mid-Hudson region. Gene Fairbanks, who is known for his work in many artistic endeavors and who teaches art at Wappingers Falls, is instructing a TAP workshop in mixed media in a renovated downtown store on Poughkeepsie's Church Street. This workshop was specifically designed to serve arts-interested students of Poughkeepsie's inner city schools.

Fairbanks is focusing on the use of painting, sculpture, films, collage, poetry and music to explore the contemporary arts scene and the growing interrelationship of art forms. He has renovated the store in which the workshop is being held, with the assistance of several local art teachers, and plans call for its use as a gallery for exhibiting his own works and those of other area artists. Poetry readings and other types of performances will also be held there.

The blossoming of the old store into an attractive workshop and gallery has been greeted with interest and excitement by people who live and work in downtown Poughkeepsie. Interestingly enough, this workshop is a pilot regional effort aimed at reaching inner city students through the medium of the arts. Educators in general believe such an approach to be among the most effective catalysts for generating educational change and growth.

Sculpture of Clay

Another spring workshop is currently being conducted by

Mrs. Jean Carlson, of Cornwall. Also a new-to-TAP instructor and a faculty member of Orange County Community College, she is teaching sculpture through use of clay and plasticine, and hopes to use live models often in the Cornwall workshop.

Still other workshops in the spring session of TAP, which began recently, are devoted to print-making and kinetic sculpture, with John DeBroske of Garrison instructing; jewelry and metalwork, taught by Cragmoor's Russell Roy; and sculpture, conducted by Thyra Davidson, of New Paltz.

These six workshops for artistically talented elementary and secondary students in the Mid-Hudson area are supported by Federal funds and administered by the Mid-Hudson Regional Supplementary Educational Center at New Paltz, and Ulster County BOCES.

Current TAP workshop sessions will be taking place each Saturday through May 25 from 10 a. m. to 2 p. m. Only 12 students have been accepted for each class to assure a close working relationship with the artist-instructor. The students were initially nominated by their teachers in the public and non-public schools of Ulster, Dutchess, Orange, Putnam, Sullivan and upper Westchester Counties.

Dr. Kenyon Speaks

Recently, Dr. Raymond G. Kenyon, director of the Mid-Hudson Center and one of the designers and developers of TAP, was the guest speaker at the monthly meeting of the Dutchess County Arts Council. His topic at the luncheon session was "Federal-Private Funding of the Arts and Humanities."

The Council, which is made up of representatives from various cultural organizations including the Community Children's Theatre, Arlington Junior Concerts, and the Mid-Hudson Philharmonic, heard Dr. Kenyon describe the various programs currently operational and funded with federal funds in the Mid-Hudson region. These programs included the Talented Art Program and the Festival of the Performing Arts. Dr. Kenyon defined the role of the Regional Center as being an agency for coordinating public and private funds, planning or designing programs, evaluation, and dissemination. "All of the current regional programs are funded with ESEA Title III monies with the exception of a Title II grant for a professional library awarded the Center," Dr. Kenyon said. "But there are other Titles under which monies are available. These include, Title I for the disadvantaged, Title IV for research, Title V for State Education Department, Educational Programs, Title VI for the handicapped, and Title VII for the bi-lingual. One of our primary functions as a Regional Center is to help design programs for schools that are eligible for these monies... We also consult, plan and design with cultural groups to see if it is possible to design projects which could be funded by current priority standards."

He Painted the History Makers

An exhibition of paintings and drawings by the late Rene Bouche, one of the world's finest portrait painters, will be on display at the Stone Ridge campus of Ulster County Community College starting March 4 and continuing until March 29.

98 Art Works Included in 31st Annual

The 31st Annual Exhibition, Artists of Central New York, is now on display in the Munson-Williams-Proctor Institute Museum of Art, Utica. The show consists of 98 works (47 paintings, 19 prints and drawings, 32 pieces of sculpture and constructions) by 86 artists residing within a 100-mile radius of Utica, plus 16 works (12 paintings, 1 print, 2 pieces of sculpture and 1 construction) by 16 invited artists. Invited artists were not eligible for prizes or purchase awards.

The Jury of Selection comprised of John Ferren, artist, of East Hampton, and Gordon B. Washburn, director, Asia House Gallery, New York, judged 693 works submitted by 391 artists and awarded the three Institute prizes of $100 each to Peter A. Chamberlain of Syracuse with Graven Image VII, fiberglass and polyester resin; James E. Dwyer of Syracuse with Omega, acrylic; and Frank A. Litto of New Baltimore with Black Iron, mixed media. The Institute will purchase approximately $1,000 worth of work from the exhibition for its collection.

Many of the works in the show are for sale and purchases may be arranged at the Art Shop in the Museum. The Institute handles these sales as a public service, without a commission charge.

Following the show's closing in Utica on March 17, the entire exhibition will be displayed at The Art Gallery of the State University of New York at Albany from April 2 through April 30. The University gallery will also purchase $1,000 worth of work from the exhibition for its collection.

The exhibition will be in Gallery Hall of the John Burroughs Science Building. Hours are 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday through Thursday and 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Fridays. The public is invited to view this fine exhibit.

Bouche painted many of the world's most influential and respected men and women including Presidents John F. Kennedy and Harry S. Truman, Igor Stravinsky, Leonard Bernstein, Jean Cocteau, Elsa Maxwell and the Dutchess of Windsor. Truman Capote called him a contemporary Boldini and Aldous Huxley once described his portraits as living "a double life, as interesting and often curious compositions and as strikingly vivid rendering of man and women seen by a discerning eye and understood by a penetrating and intuitive mind."

Associate Professor Ruth Muroff, the college's visual arts coordination, organized this exhibition to reveal Bouche as an artist involved with the worlds of great art and high fashion.

Public Lecture

His son, Michael Bouche, a resident of Fishkill, collected the works to be shown in the exhibit. In conjunction with the show, the son will give a talk entitled, "The Works and Approach of the Artist," at 1:30 p. m. Thursday, March 14, in the Teaching Auditorium of the Science Building. It is open to the public.

Internationally renowned for his distinguished portraits of famous people, Bouche was the leading exponent of portraiture as a modern art form until his death in 1963. He resided in the Hudson Valley for several years, making his home a few miles east of Rhinebeck. His widow and son today reside in Fishkill.

A regular contributor to Vogue Magazine, Bouche was considered the dean of fashion illustrators. He created the classic advertising style of Elizabeth Arden and his world-wide advertising campaigns for Jaguar, Schweppes and Saks Fifth Avenue set new standards in advertising art. His sketches for the Columbia Broadcasting System are now on permanent display in Television City, Hollywood. One, of Jack Benny, is used regularly for publicity and other purposes.

His paintings hang in museums across the nation, including the Whitney Museum, Museum of Modern Art, Yale University Art Museum, Museum of the City of New York, Museum of the American University and the Air Force Academy Museum.

Born in Prague, Czechoslovakia, in 1905, Bouche began painting at the age of five and never stopped from that day forward. Educated in Austria, Germany and France, he studied art at the University of Munich and with Amedee Ozenfant in Paris.

He started out as a surrealist, then turned to abstract expressionism after coming to the United States when France fell. Bouche first painted portraits in 1933, then left them for a time. He returned to portrait painting again in the 1950's when he developed his own individualistic style. He always had a great interest in the person he was painting and often refused requests to paint people when they did not interest him.

Following his first one-man show at the Philadelphia Art Alliance in 1948, Bouche turned to abstract painting. He was part of the New York abstract group and a member of the Eighth Street Avant-Garde Club for five years. He lectured frequently at leading art schools and centers including the Art Students League, and was interviewed on a number of television and radio programs.

TAP Turns to 8mm Film-Making

Keeping in tune with the times, the spring 1968 session of TAP (Talented Art Program) is offering several classes that are new and contemporary in concept. Sociologists are pretty well in agreement that film-making is becoming more and more the voice of the young people of today. For that reason, TAP's film-making workshop deserves praise as a pioneering effort locally.

Teaching the basic techniques of 8mm film-making is new instructor Albert Anderson of the faculty of SUNY, New Paltz. His students will plan, script, shoot and edit their own films. Those with special interests will work with animation, time-lapse photography, and experimental film making. The history and development of cinema as an art will also be studied.

Anderson's group has a well-equipped meeting place. Sessions are held in the photography laboratory of the Fine Arts Building, State University College, New Paltz. The 8mm cameras, projectors, and other equipment for this workshop have been furnished by Eastman Kodak Company, Rochester, which will also send in an educational specialist to work with Anderson and the class in developing visual perceptions and manual skills.

Urban and New

TAP's new spring session also features the first urban workshop in this unique program for artistically talented students in the Mid-Hudson region. Gene Fairbanks, who is known for his work in many artistic endeavors and who teaches art at Wappingers Falls, is instructing a TAP workshop in mixed media in a renovated downtown store on Poughkeepsie's Church Street. This workshop was specifically designed to serve arts-interested students of Poughkeepsie's inner city schools.

Fairbanks is focusing on the use of painting, sculpture, films, collage, poetry and music to explore the contemporary arts scene and the growing interrelationship of art forms. He has renovated the store in which the workshop is being held, with the assistance of several local art teachers, and plans call for its use as a gallery for exhibiting his own works and those of other area artists. Poetry readings and other types of performances will also be held there.

The blossoming of the old store into an attractive workshop and gallery has been greeted with interest and excitement by people who live and work in downtown Poughkeepsie. Interestingly enough, this workshop is a pilot regional effort aimed at reaching inner city students through the medium of the arts. Educators in general believe such an approach to be among the most effective catalysts for generating educational change and growth.

Sculpture of Clay

Another spring workshop is currently being conducted by

Mrs. Jean Carlson, of Cornwall. Also a new-to-TAP instructor and a faculty member of Orange County Community College, she is teaching sculpture through use of clay and plasticine, and hopes to use live models often in the Cornwall workshop.

Still other workshops in the spring session of TAP, which began recently, are devoted to print - making and kinetic sculpture, with John DeBroske of Garrison instructing; jewelry and metalwork, taught by Cragmoor's Russell Roy; and sculpture, conducted by Thyra Davidson, of New Paltz.

These six workshops for artistically talented elementary and secondary students in the Mid-Hudson area are supported by Federal funds and administered by the Mid-Hudson Regional Supplementary Educational Center at New Paltz, and Ulster County BOCES.

Current TAP workshop sessions will be taking place each Saturday through May 25 from 10 a. m. to 2 p. m. Only 12 students have been accepted for each class to assure a close working relationship with the artist-instructor. The students were initially nominated by their teachers in the public and non-public schools of Ulster, Dutchess, Orange, Putnam, Sullivan and upper Westchester Counties.

Dr. Kenyon Speaks

Recently, Dr. Raymond G. Kenyon, director of the Mid-Hudson Center and one of the designers and developers of TAP, was the guest speaker at the monthly meeting of the Dutchess County Arts Council. His topic at the luncheon session was "Federal-Private Funding of the Arts and Humanities."

The Council, which is made up of representatives from various cultural organizations including the Community Children's Theatre, Arlington Junior Concerts, and the Mid-Hudson Philharmonic, heard Dr. Kenyon describe the various programs currently operational and funded with federal funds in the Mid-Hudson region. These programs included the Talented Art Program and the Festival of the Performing Arts. Dr. Kenyon defined the role of the Regional Center as being an agency for coordinating public and private funds, planning or designing programs, evaluation, and dissemination. "All of the current regional programs are funded with ESEA Title III monies with the exception of a Title II grant for a professional library awarded the Center," Dr. Kenyon said. "But there are other Titles under which monies are available. These include, Title I for the disadvantaged, Title IV for research, Title V for State Education Department, Educational Programs, Title VI for the handicapped, and Title VII for the bi-lingual. One of our primary functions as a Regional Center is to help design programs for schools that are eligible for these monies... We also consult, plan and design with cultural groups to see if it is possible to design projects which could be funded by current priority standards."

He Painted the History Makers

An exhibition of paintings and drawings by the late Rene Bouche, one of the world's finest portrait painters, will be on display at the Stone Ridge campus of Ulster County Community College starting March 4 and continuing until March 29.

98 Art Works Included in 31st Annual

The 31st Annual Exhibition, Artists of Central New York, is now on display in the Munson-Williams-Proctor Institute Museum of Art, Utica. The show consists of 98 works (47 paintings, 19 prints and drawings, 32 pieces of sculpture and constructions) by 86 artists residing within a 100-mile radius of Utica, plus 16 works (12 paintings, 1 print, 2 pieces of sculpture and 1 construction) by 16 invited artists. # Banana Thief—A "Different" Play

By TOBIE GEERTSEMA

Shuffling back and forth between a real stove and a real refrigerator, eight characters who have found an author, cook and eat real food on stage. Occasionally, gun shots are fired. Often, actors suddenly break into song. Always, the furniture is the scenery. And why not? Because this one is definitely "different!"

This one is "The Banana Thief," a sometimes terrifying, often weird, and more-often-than-not terribly funny-sad play, now being presented by Performing Arts of Woodstock at their Little Theatre-off-the-Green in the art colony.

Written by Woodstocker Holly Beye, whose original plays have been seen Off-Broadway, in San Francisco, and locally, "Thief"—a three-act drama—has been uniquely staged by Robert Burgos, the New York-schooled director currently associated with PAW. Burgos hit upon the idea of presenting "Thief" arena style with the audience seated on four sides of the playing area, as a method of softening ing the straight, stylized manner in which the play was written. He felt, too, that by putting his cast into a 20x40 foot arena-like area, he could succeed in breaking down those invisible walls that a proscenium stage always creates for an audience. The strategy has obviously worked, for—as "Thief" opened last night, it was apparent to even the most untutored viewer, that the style of the play had indeed been broken down via a breaking down of the walls and their complete elimination.

For Social Mutants

What's "Thief" all about? Essentially, it describes the Mission Dolores, a waterfront boarding house run by its landlady, Madame Dolores, who describes her hostelry as "the last hospice for the social mutant." The story line revolves around a man named Big Sissors Norton, who runs an underworld organization that keeps the Dolores residents alive in the comfortable but strange manner to which they have grown accustomed.

When Sissors is assassinated, their lives are changed and, over a period of a day and a half, the audience sees exactly how the outcasts of society who gather at the Mission are affected by his death. A new man coming into the group complicates the plot, as does the ever present awareness of the silent force that is the syndicate.

Although "Thief" is not a musical, it combines music with a straight play, using music to emphasize the aspects and emotions of the story. Actors sing, accompanied by the guitar, as a means of incorporating speeches and songs as dialogue. Often, what the characters have to say, they say in song.

An interview with director Bob Burgos, who arrived here via New York's American Academy of Dramatic Arts, classes with Lee Strasberg and others, and six seasons of summer stock, elicited the information the he enjoys working in such new and uncharted waters as "Thief," as well as with the classics. Burgos, who's been in films and on Off-Broadway—and once directed "Streetcar Named Desire" in Mexico in Spanish—feels a new play such as this one presents fewer problems, since there are no preconceived ideas of what it must be like. He noted, however, that—during rehearsals—Miss Beye was constantly rewriting the play and that the structure and interpretation changed from day to day to make it more interesting and entertaining.

Avoiding the Fake

What about that novel touch of having performers prepare and eat real food on stage? Totally logical and realistic, says Burgos, since the audience sits only a foot or two away from the actors in the "round" style utilized. With theatre-goers on all four sides of the arena, the food had to actually be prepared by the actors if the action was to avoid a fake look.

Burgos also hopes to avoid any sort of label for "Thief." He says it is neither naturalistic nor fantasy—but is, perhaps, a combination of both. He prefers to see it in many ways: very funny, also ver serious, very theatrical, total drama.

He has also found it very productive and interesting to be working with "community" actors rather than professionals; says they take on a lot of responsibility and put forth a great deal of effort, with exciting results.

Actually, several of Thief's cast have studied with superior people in New York, or have performed often professionally. Among them are IBM employee Ron Radice; Kingstonian Don Epperson; Larry Shufelt, who lives in Sawkill and works at GMC in Newburgh; Woodstock carpenter David Boyle; West Hurley housewife Edith LeFever; Rotron employee Jo Chalmers; new Woodstock resident Jane Traum; and illustrator and author, Volney Crowwell. Author Beye is a teacher-librarian; is remembered for "The White Angel," the play she wrote and directed for PAW last season.

Symbol Searching

When a play is complex, funny and disturbing (as is always the case with Miss Beye's work), audiences and critics start looking for a symbol. In "Thief," what happens happens it seems to us. There is no need to analyze endlessly and keep asking ourselves and others what she was trying to say . . . what it all means. The message is the solution, not the message.

Burgos may or may not agree, and govern his life because of the disappearance of this force. As far as Burgos is concerned, Miss Beye writes about very basic and important things such as lack of communication between people and their very unwillingness to communicate with each other. Burgos feels that audiences at "Thief" will be able to identify with the play's varied characters for this reason, too. And, for this reason, too, audiences will probably be beating a path to Woodstock's Little Theatre over the next few weekends. ## Los Indios Here After Tour

The Cultural Centre of Mount Saint Mary College has set the last professional adult offering this season with the performance of Los Indios Tabajaras on March 23. Two Brazilian brothers, Los Indios Play classical, ethnic and popular music on their guitars. Clad in colorful costumes, Los Indios have been acclaimed on four continents for their virtuoso playing in the last 15 years.

Mussapere and Herundy are the third and fourth sons of an Indian family of the Tabajaras tribe from the interior of Brazil. The family migrated to Rio de Janeiro where the musical talent of the two boys was immediately recognized. After years of extensive voice and guitar study, they received a contract from a local radio station. Soon their name and fame spread throughout Latin America and Spain. Eventually, RCA Victor signed Los Indios to an exclusive recording contract and brought them to the United States. Their first record, Maria Elena, became a best seller. They have since completed six albums, and their latest—entitled Their Very Special Touch—is with symphony orchestra.

Los Indios Tabajaras have just returned from a globe-circling tour. They visited Japan, the Orient, and Europe, concluding their trip with an appearance at the San Remo Music Festival. In the summer of 1967, they gave other concerts throughout South America, and in the United States, where they have become a favorite of college and university audiences. Los Indios are also popular on television as frequent guests on the Arthur Godfrey Show, the Ed Sullivan Show, and Johnny Carson's Tonight Show.

Tickets for the March 23 performance may be reserved now by calling (914) 561-5690 between 10 and noon and 1-4 p.m. weekdays. The concert will begin at 8:15 p.m.

Famed Soprano Here From Rome

Dramatic soprano Marta Pinder, currently touring the U.S. after European singing successes, will appear at Orange County Community College on Monday, March 4. The 8 p.m. concert in the Orange Hall auditorium at Middletown is open to the public.

Miss Pender has won critical acclaim for her operatic roles in Italy, Sicily, Denmark, Germany and particularly for her Lady Macbeth in Verdi's "MacBeth" at England's Glyndebourne Festival in 1964. Studied at Hardin-Simmons University and earned a bachelor's degree in music from North Texas State University where she was a pupil of Mary McCormick.

In 1953 Miss Pender was a finalist in the Concours International d'Execution Musical in Geneva and a year later made her operatic debut in Mascagni's "Cavalleria Rusticana" with the famed tenor Beniamino Gigli. For the past six years, she has made her home in Rome while performing all over Europe.

Tickets for the concert may be obtained at the box office. General admission is nominal.

What's New on Your Screen??

The forces which embroiled the globe in World War II and resulted in the deaths of over 50 million people will be explored in ABC-TV's special three-part telecast this week, "The Rise and Fall of the Third Reich," on Wednesday, Friday and Saturday evenings.

Based on the monumental history of Nazi Germany by William L. Shirer, and narrated by Richard Basehart, the programs will deal with the various stages in the diabolical drama of the Third Reich. Part I's "Rise to Power" analyzes the political and economic causes leading to Hitler's assumption of power. Part II, "Road to War," deals with Nazi successes from 1933, when Hitler seized absolute power, to the fall of France. Finally, "Gottterdammerung" covers the Third Reich from 1941 to its demise in the smoldering ruins of bombed-out Berlin in 1945.

Two years of exhaustive research and interviews with some of the surviving powers behind the Third Reich went into this three-parter. Researchers found many things—in footage, memoirs and actual interviews—that were unobtainable after the war, and will now be presented in a retrospective view of that period. Viewers will be seeing never-before-seen film, early shots of Hitler and Nazi rallies, and amazing anti-Hitler campaign cartoons made by the Socialist Democratic Party in 1932.

Survivor Speaks

In addition, a survivor of the Nazi concentration camps will give a hard, metallic look at what it's like being an inmate of such a camp. Prior publicity received by TEMPO on the telecasts notes that the series is done solely from the viewpoint of the Germans—with no cop-outs and no placing of false sympathies where they don't belong.

If TEMPO is looking forward with unusual interest to seeing the Third Reich reviewed, it is also equally enthusiastic about a program coming up soon that's strictly for the kiddie audience. Because of the youngsters around our household, we have long had a sinking depression over TV's greatest responsibility and greatest failing, creative programming for children.

The only two series for children on a regular basis are Captain Kangaroo on CBS and Misterogers Playhouse, a NET entry. After that, kiddie audience must content themselves with an endless array of 30-year-old cartoons and new animated series that have dipped to the Class Z category... or, worse yet, horror movies, vintage westerns and Our Gang types.

That's why we're cheering the brief return of Burr Tillstrom, one of the most creative of children's programmers, who's just completed an hour-long special adaptation of "The Reluctant Dragon." It'll be aired on NBC-TV March 21. So watch for the Kukla, Fran and Ollie man at his best.

Believe it or not, TEMPO's favorite shows over the past week's viewing period turned out to be Mayor John Lindsay's regular half-hour series Sunday night over Channel 5... and The Smothers Brothers Show on the same evening. Lindsay traded quips with his former Parks Commissioner, Thomas P.F. Hoving, and the reporter was rare indeed. One-upmanship was the order of the night, as it had been earlier when the Smothers boys hosted and sang along with folk singer Pete Seeger, who turned in a superb performance.

Skelton's Genius

And, if Red Skelton may not be the most original man in the world, it's impossible to deny his genius in his own comedic forms. We're talking, of course, about his one-man pantomime performance Tuesday before an audience of U.N. representatives, on "Laughter—The Universal Language." Red did a girl dressing in the morning, a balloon salesman and a little boy, an American couple at the Eiffel Tower, an old man watching a parade, and the neighbors and the fickle rooster. Needless to say, it all made for entertaining home viewing.

THE MARTIAL PANOPL and crowd hysteria that overlay the world-shaking misery of the Hitler era is symbolized in this scene from "Rise and Fall of the Third Reich," a three-part documentary slated for ABC-TV. The special, based on William L. Shirer's monumental history of Nazi Germany, will air as a series of one hour specials Wednesday, Friday and Saturday of this week. Richard Basehart will narrate.

And, a final salute or two, or three. One for Present Laughter, the shouldn't have been missed and brilliantly executed English production of one of Noel Coward's funniest plays. Dialogue was dazzling, witty and sardonic and was delivered perfectly by Peter O'Toole, marvelous as a flamboyant actor who can't stop giving performances. The other for Carol Channing who, despite those 101 men on her special Thursday, showed up as the most versatile of the bunch.

Last bow of the week goes to that "unprecedented" and accurate in every degree presentation, The Soviets in Space. We found this first-time view of the Russian space efforts including its people, installations and actual flight an absorbing program. Made for a good comparison of the differences between their nation and ours.

TEMPO TELEVISION LISTINGS for the week coming up include the following as our choices for best viewing bets:

LINDA SUE RISK is the cute tyke who occasionally turns up on the Red Skelton show to play wif to Red's "Freddie the Free-loader" character. Their point and counterpoint was especially attractive in a recent episode about a fatherless girl for whom Freddie found a policeman step-father.

What's New on Your Screen??

The forces which embroiled the globe in World War II and resulted in the deaths of over 50 million people will be explored in ABC-TV's special three-part telecast this week, "The Rise and Fall of the Third Reich," on Wednesday, Friday and Saturday evenings.

Based on the monumental history of Nazi Germany by William L. Shirer, and narrated by Richard Basehart, the programs will deal with the various stages in the diabolical drama of the Third Reich. Part I's "Rise to Power" analyzes the political and economic causes leading to Hitler's assumption of power. Part II, "Road to War," deals with Nazi successes from 1933, when Hitler seized absolute power, to the fall of France. Finally, "Gottterdammerung" covers the Third Reich from 1941 to its demise in the smoldering ruins of bombed-out Berlin in 1945.

Two years of exhaustive research and interviews with some of the surviving powers behind the Third Reich went into this three-parter. Researchers found many things—in footage, memoirs and actual interviews—that were unobtainable after the war, and will now be presented in a retrospective view of that period. ## Colonia Sets Season

The season just ahead marks the 11th anniversary year of the Colonia Summer Theatre in Latham, N.Y. Plans for the 1968 season call for the installation of a modern sound system and the purchase of some 500 new canvas yacht chairs. Owner Eddie Rich says the new decor and sound improvements will provide a relaxed background for a season of top stars in excellent plays and musicals. Special one night attractions are also slated this season and the full schedule will be announced shortly. Season and individual ticket information may be obtained by writing the theatre at Box 136, Latham.

Boys and Girls, 9 Years old or under

ENTER THIS CONTEST!

CONTEST RULES

This contest is open to all children who have not reached their tenth birthday on the date that entry is made.

Contest will extend for 13 weeks beginning Saturday, February 24, 1968.

To enter, the child must complete the coloring of the "Coloring Fun" page of the Tiny Turtle section appearing in Saturday's Tempo Magazine of the Kingston Daily Freeman. The child or his parent must print the child's name, age and address and telephone number on the page.

Entries are to be delivered or mailed to the Bank so that they arrive no later than 3 p. m. Wednesday following the publication date of the Tiny Turtle section.

Each week a total of ten entries will be selected at random from all complete entries submitted. Entries so selected will be posted in Kingston Savings Bank Lobby by Friday noon, and each winning contestant will receive a set of 24 Binney & Smith "Crayola" crayons in sturdy plastic containers. A winner automatically comes ineligible for any of the remaining weekly contest awards. That is, only one set of crayons will be awarded to a child.

At the end of 13 weeks, the following grand prize winners will be selected from among the 130 weekly winners by a panel of judges: First prize, $25 U. S. Savings Bond; the second prize, a $10 Savings Account (or addition of $10 to the child's present account at Kingston Savings Bank); third prize, a $5 savings account (or addition of $5 to present Kingston Savings Bank account.)

Decision of the judges will be final. All entries become the property of the Kingston Savings Bank and none can be returned.

ENTER THIS CONTEST!

CONTEST RULES

This contest is open to all children who have not reached their tenth birthday on the date that entry is made.

Contest will extend for 13 weeks beginning Saturday, February 24, 1968.

To enter, the child must complete the coloring of the "Coloring Fun" page of the Tiny Turtle section appearing in Saturday's Tempo Magazine of the Kingston Daily Freeman. The child or his parent must print the child's name, age and address and telephone number on the page.

Entries are to be delivered or mailed to the Bank so that they arrive no later than 3 p. m. Wednesday following the publication date of the Tiny Turtle section.

Each week a total of ten entries will be selected at random from all complete entries submitted. Entries so selected will be posted in Kingston Savings Bank Lobby by Friday noon, and each winning contestant will receive a set of 24 Binney & Smith "Crayola" crayons in sturdy plastic containers. A winner automatically comes ineligible for any of the remaining weekly contest awards. That is, only one set of crayons will be awarded to a child.

At the end of 13 weeks, the following grand prize winners will be selected from among the 130 weekly winners by a panel of judges: First prize, $25 U. S. Savings Bond; the second prize, a $10 Savings Account (or addition of $10 to the child's present account at Kingston Savings Bank); third prize, a $5 savings account (or addition of $5 to present Kingston Savings Bank account.)

Decision of the judges will be final. All entries become the property of the Kingston Savings Bank and none can be returned.

Playing by Ear Makes Musicians of Tots

Youngsters do as they hear and nothing has proved this theory more than the Suzuki violin method, which has been credited with making fledgling musicians more than slightly proficient . . . even though they have only reached the ripe old age of 3, 4 or 5-years-old.

If proof was needed that this unique teaching process results in healthy returns, such proof was forthcoming last fall when a Suzuki demonstration concert was presented one Sunday afternoon in November at the State University College, New Paltz. Tiny students who had learned to master the violin (some of them had begun study at the age of four months; others only snort weeks after their first birthday) took the stage to present a program of warming up exercises, selections of children's songs and folk tunes, and special compositions by the master himself, Japan's Shinichi Suzuki.

The youngsters performing at Paltz, who used the Suzuki method, were all in the three-to-seven-year-old age category—and they had learned their lessons well. While they appeared in a program which also included the high school age students of their teacher, Dorothy Norvell, the pre-schoolers stole the show as they swung their instruments under their chins, and proceeded to play Bach, Brahms and music from Mary Poppins with surprising finesse and style. Audience reaction varied from pleased surprise to almost total amazement.

Playing by Ear

And it is amazing indeed what tiny tots can learn from Suzuki and instructors who have adopted his teachings. His unique methods of teaching violin through playing by ear were cian invented his system by watching babies imitate their parents' speech. When a mother asked him to teach violin to her four-year-old son, he insisted the child was too young; changed his mind when he heard first hand that the boy had a working vocabulary of more than 1,000 words, acquired by listening to his mother repeat them.

Said Suzuki: It should be the same with music," and proceeded to prove it could be.

This method of simple sound

ago. He has been the talk of Japan's music world for many years, for he dispenses with all scales; teaches his students to learn by listening and repeating, just as a child learns to converse by listening to his parents and brothers and sisters.

A concert violinist himself, the celebrated Japanese music developed by this famed Japanese instructor some years repetition allows tots to get accustomed to the sound of a violin by hearing advanced students practice. By first learning to recognize and hum simple tunes, these tiny beginners are able to associate the melodies with the movements of a bow and the fingers. Technical language is never used in the method and differences, says Suzuki, should be conveyed by comparing the strength of the sounds to those made by animals—in terms of loudness and softness.

Force Is Out

Stress is also placed on good playing posture and Suzuki has advised all teachers using his method to persuade children, but never, never to force them.

Ulster County parents who would like to see their youngest youngsters learn to enjoy playing the violin for their own pleasure at an early age (and perhaps go on to become a concert artist in later life) are being offered just that opportunity by music teacher Frances Gould, of Lakeview Terrace, New Salem.

Mrs. Gould would like to begin classes in violin via Suzuki within a month; says she will accept youngsters of 2½ or 3 after talking with parents and gaining assurance they will take an interest along with the child. She visualizes private sessions, combining listening to recordings and actual lessons, and with at least one parent in attendance to learn with the student by taking notes, tuning the violin, and undersanding correct posture, habits, hand exercises, finger patterns, and the cooperation that will be needed for home practice.

While They're Young

There can be no argument that classes of this type would be—in Mrs. Gould's words—"a marvelous thing for children that young." By stressing cooperation rather than competition, learning by memory instead of by music, and seeing that each student uses the same sequence of material regardless of ability, children develop musical sensitivity rapidly, she says.

If Mrs. Gould feels that, as a teacher, she should motivate and awaken a desire for musical excellence in children, she also feels that parents who are interested in enrolling their pre-schoolers for instruction in her classes, must themselves be willing to listen, learn and help. It would seem, then, that if there are parents out there in Tanglewood who have budding Bernsteins who show promise of becoming mature Menuhins, they should contact Mrs. Gould immediately. The Suzuki class can then become a reality in a few short weeks, and the youngsters around your house will be talking tonalization, vibrato, tempo, trill and intonation all up and down the scale, in a matter of months.

The Arts and Girl Scouting Go Hand-in-Hand

Most people think of Girl Scouts in terms of hiking, canoeing, camping and civic service. Few are aware that the field of the arts has always constituted a big third of the Girl Scout program. The arts in scouting is accented as heavily as the home and the out-of-doors.

That alone means a lot since, in this day and age, the arts are more important than ever before, simply because today's young people are setting styles, trends and even standards of taste.

For this reason, TEMPO feels it is both newsworthy and meritorious that two Senior Scouts and one adult volunteer from Ulster County Council of Girl Scouts will be participants in the upcoming "World of Arts" Conference. The conference is a major Girl Scout event on a national level which will be held during the coming summer. Picked from this area to participate are Mrs. Paul Perlman, of Woodstock, a Council program consultant who will serve as a conference staff adviser; and Senior Scouts Rita Mary Senor and Charlyn Herdman, who'll participate with more than 600 girls all over the country in conference workshops.

Accent on Arts

Accent at the national arts conference will be on music, dramatics, visual arts and folk arts, and Mrs. Perlman will be an adviser in the latter sessions. The event will be held as a series of four 10-day workshops during July and August at the Scout Training Center in Pleasantville, a site from which the cultural points of interest in New York City, Westchester County and New England will be toured.

The two girls who will attend from here are both members of Senior Scout Troop 131, which meets at St. James Methodist Church, Kingston, under the leadership of Mrs. Francis Fagan and Mrs. Elston North Jr. Rita, daughter of Mrs. Rita Senor of Kiersted

Avenue, will participate in the Drama workshop, and Charlyn, daughter of the Clarence Herdman, of Derrenbacher Street, will attend one in Music. Both teenagers are interested in all phases of the arts, are active in music and dramatics at Kingston High School, and hope to study for careers in one or the other of these fields.

Before leaving for the conference, they plan to survey the cultural resources of their own community, and make preliminary plans for workshop projects that could benefit the community here. They'll discuss the projects at the workshops, look for fresh ideas to bring home, and try to finalize and carry out these projects with their troop and others in the community upon their return.

Back From Mexico

Mrs. Perlman is, of course, well known in this area. A graduate of Wellesley College, she has been active in Girl Scouting for many years as a leader, Board member, committeewoman and consultant. She recently returned from a session at the Cabana in Cuernavaca, Mexico, an international Girl Guides and Scouting center.

Along with other leaders on a local and national level, she views the summer arts conference as an influence that will extend beyond the personal experience of the girls participating. Since it is a known fact that today's girls will enjoy increased leisure as adults, such scouting efforts aim to prepare them to use their leisure in creative ways, either by practicing one of the arts or becoming more appreciative of culture in general. Since the workshops will include both popular and traditional forms of artistic expression, and since participants are committed to a major "back home action project" to stimulate community activity in the arts, the conference promises to be a far-reaching event.

"The Miser" Coming

Moliere's famous satirical comedy, "The Miser," is slated for production by the Senior Class of New Paltz High School on Friday and Saturday, March 29 and 30, in the school's auditorium. As the house lights dim and the curtain parts for the first act, the public will be seeing for the first time the culmination of more than a few weeks of hard work by a very able teenage technical crew.

Working behind the scenes to assure the success of the play are: Anne Tenaglia, stage manager; Mike Casson, props; Ann Archard, costumes; Roseanne Dieterick, Linda Tantillo and Sandy Martino, sets; Larry Whittaker, lights; Ed McSweeney, sound and music; Tina Marks and Lorna Rode, tickets; and Candy Glanz Eileen Brennan, publicity. Kudos are due, too, to Margey Miller, who is responsible for constructing the statue around which some of the action of "The Miser" revolves.

Writing Workshop

The Writers' Guild of the Mid-Hudson Valley is sponsoring a Creative Writing Workshop, beginning Monday, March 5. Sessions will be taught by Sidney Reitman, and instruction will cover short stories, poetry and dramatic pieces. Participants will meet in Christ Church Parish House, Carroll Street, Poughkeepsie, on Tuesdays from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. The workshop is programmed for nine weeks, and additional information is available from Mrs. June Canino, Perkinstown Road, Highland. The regular Writers' Guild meeting is slated for March 14 at 8 p.m.

By meeting and working with practicing artists and well known critics and technicians, the participants should learn much about museums, symphonies, theaters and concerts, as well as the more commercial aspects and uses of the arts. Field trips will include tours of Sturbridge Village, Tanglewood music colony, and the Hudson River Valley.

Playing by Ear Makes Musicians of Tots

Youngsters do as they hear and nothing has proved this theory more than the Suzuki violin method, which has been credited with making fledgling musicians more than slightly proficient . . . even though they have only reached the ripe old age of 3, 4 or 5-years-old.

If proof was needed that this unique teaching process results in healthy returns, such proof was forthcoming last fall when a Suzuki demonstration concert was presented one Sunday afternoon in November at the State University College, New Paltz. Tiny students who had learned to master the violin (some of them had begun study at the age of four months; others only snort weeks after their first birthday) took the stage to present a program of warming up exercises, selections of children's songs and folk tunes, and special compositions by the master himself, Japan's Shinichi Suzuki.

The youngsters performing at Paltz, who used the Suzuki method, were all in the three-to-seven-year-old age category—and they had learned their lessons well. While they appeared in a program which also included the high school age students of their teacher, Dorothy Norvell, the pre-schoolers stole the show as they swung their instruments under their chins, and proceeded to play Bach, Brahms and music from Mary Poppins with surprising finesse and style. Audience reaction varied from pleased surprise to almost total amazement.

Playing by Ear

And it is amazing indeed what tiny tots can learn from Suzuki and instructors who have adopted his teachings. His unique methods of teaching violin through playing by ear were invented his system by watching babies imitate their parents' speech. When a mother asked him to teach violin to her four-year-old son, he insisted the child was too young; changed his mind when he heard first hand that the boy had a working vocabulary of more than 1,000 words, acquired by listening to his mother repeat them.

Said Suzuki: It should be the same with music, and proceeded to prove it could be.

This method of simple sound

repetition allows tots to get accustomed to the sound of a violin by hearing advanced students practice. By first learning to recognize and hum simple tunes, these tiny beginners are able to associate the melodies with the movements of a bow and the fingers. Technical language is never used in the method and differences, says Suzuki, should

Force Is Out

Stress is also placed on good playing posture and Suzuki has advised all teachers using his method to persuade children, but never, never to force them.

Ulster County parents who would like to see their youngest youngsters learn to enjoy playing the violin for their own pleasure at an early age (and perhaps go on to become a concert artist in later life) are being offered just that opportunity by music teacher Frances Gould, of Lakeview Terrace, New Salem.

Mrs. Gould would like to begin classes in violin via Suzuki within a month; says she will accept youngsters of 2½ or 3 after talking with parents and gaining assurance they will take an interest along with the child. She visualizes private sessions, combining listening to recordings and actual lessons, and with at least one parent in attendance to learn with the student by taking notes, tuning the violin, and undersanding correct posture, habits, hand exercises, finger patterns, and the cooperation that will be needed for home practice.

While They're Young

There can be no argument that classes of this type would be—in Mrs. Gould's words—"a marvelous thing for children that young." By stressing cooperation rather than competition, learning by memory instead of by music, and seeing that each student uses the same sequence of material regardless of ability, children develop musical sensitivity rapidly, she says.

If Mrs. Gould feels that, as a teacher, she should motivate and awaken a desire for musical excellence in children, she also feels that parents who are interested in enrolling their pre-schoolers for instruction in her classes, must themselves be willing to listen, learn and help. It would seem, then, that if there are parents out there in Tanglewood who have budding Bernsteins who show promise of becoming mature Menuhins, they should contact Mrs. Gould immediately. The Suzuki class can then become a reality in a few short weeks, and the youngsters around your house will be talking tonalization, vibrato, tempo, trill and intonation all up and down the scale, in a matter of months.

ago. He has been the talk of Japan's music world for many years, for he dispenses with all scales; teaches his students to learn by listening and repeating, just as a child learns to converse by listening to his parents and brothers and sisters.

The Arts and Girl Scouting Go Hand-in-Hand

Most people think of Girl Scouts in terms of hiking, canoeing, camping and civic service. Few are aware that the field of the arts has always constituted a big third of the Girl Scout program. The arts in scouting is accented as heavily as the home and the out-of-doors.

That alone means a lot since, in this day and age, the arts are more important than ever before, simply because today's young people are setting styles, trends and even standards of taste.

For this reason, TEMPO feels it is both newsworthy and meritorious that two Senior Scouts and one adult volunteer from Ulster County Council of Girl Scouts will be participants in the upcoming "World of Arts" Conference. The conference is a major Girl Scout event on a national level which will be held during the coming summer. Picked from this area to participate are Mrs. Paul Perlman, of Woodstock, a Council program consultant who will serve as a conference staff adviser; and Senior Scouts Rita Mary Senor and Charlyn Herdman, who'll participate with more than 600 girls all over the country in conference workshops.

Accent on Arts

Accent at the national arts conference will be on music, dramatics, visual arts and folk arts, and Mrs. Perlman will be an adviser in the latter sessions. The event will be held as a series of four 10-day workshops during July and August at the Scout Training Center in Pleasantville, a site from which the cultural points of interest in New York City, Westchester County and New England will be toured.

The two girls who will attend from here are both members of Senior Scout Troop 131, which meets at St. James Methodist Church, Kingston, under the leadership of Mrs. Francis Fagan and Mrs. Elston North Jr. Rita, daughter of Mrs. Rita Senor of Kiersted

Avenue, will participate in the Drama workshop, and Charlyn, daughter of the Clarence Herdman, of Derrenbacher Street, will attend one in Music. ## Fite: Love Motive in Oriental Art

HARVEY FITE MAKES A POINT

The audience responded with enthusiasm to a slide lecture by sculpture Harvey Fite at the Woodstock Artists Association gallery in Woodstock recently. Fite was back after an absence of several years to present his popular slide lecture on "The Love Motive in Oriental Art."

There can be no argument that Fite's slides are beautiful and that they attest to his devoted study of Oriental art in such places as Nepal and Cambodia. The slides also testify to his love of sculpture and his skill as a photographer.

In presenting 200 of his slides at Woodstock, he drew a comparison between the philosophical approach of Eastern peoples to the idea of love, and that of our own approach here in the West. Fite suggested the West has tried to separate the intellect from the rest of human life, compartmentalizing man. The East, on the other hand, with its roots in Hinduism and Buddhism, sees everything in man united as one — mental, moral and physical. In the East, he said, all forms of life are held as divine, from the carnal to the sublime. This accounts for the representation on the great temples of India of all aspects of life — the many postures of love, as well as the smiling tiger scratching himself.

For example, on one of the greatest and most extensively carved Hindu temples, we see a cat about to catch a pigeon on the roof of the building. This is yet another example of the Hindu reverence for life in all its forms, and has been included on the temple because the animal and the bird and their relationship are part of life.

In the 13th century Hindu temple, carved in situ, one finds depicted in the flowing rhythms of stone, the varied positions of love. Here, too, can be seen the famous and beautiful carvings of stone maidens, expressions of divine sensuality. Fite also noted that in the Buddhist caves of 2 B.C., we find the more abstract symbols of divine love in Buddha — the lotus, the Bhoti tree, and the wheel of law — all cut out of the living rock walls.

To Fite's credit was the fact that he treated his audience to many technical aspects of construction in the carving of these famous temples and stupas. Speaking of the 10th century Hindu temple, he noted it was 90 feet high, had been assembled without mortar, and was, of course, intricately carved.

Fite's slides took his audience as far as Cambodia and the great Khmer civilization, and on to the mysteries of Angkor Wat, the largest religious edifice in the world. Angkor Wat even dwarfs St. Peter's and its intricate carvings have been disfigured as the great Banyan trees of the jungle have moved in to reclaim them.

Gillon Haikus Now in Print

Among the winter books offered by Twayne Publishers of New York City is a small volume of haiku style poetry written by Dr. Adam Gillon, professor of English at State University College, New Paltz, and a specialist on Polish and Hebrew literature.

Gillon's miniature collection of short poems follows the basic Japanese haiku in the style's delicate structure of 17 syllables arranged in three lines. While the Japanese thematic prescription for haiku is nature and the seasons, the Gillon volume — hardly more than wallet-sized in format — takes quick, perceptive glances at human behavior.

The New Paltz author also has had a translation from the Russian poet, Yevgeny Yevtushenko, "I Put a Poem on a Branch," published in the winter 1967 issue of The Fiddlehead. Two of his own poems, "So Many Clocks" and "Mother's Face," were published in the same magazine last spring.

This fall, in Belgrade, Yugoslavia, he read a paper on "Polish and Russian Elements in Conrad" before the Fifth Congress of the International Comparative Literature Association. He also saw the appearance of the second volume in the Twayne Polish series, on Maria Dabrowska, which he edited.

Dr. Gillon has recently been awarded a grant from the Kosciuszko Foundation in New York for the editing of a critical study of Henryk Sienkiewicz.

Dr. Gillon was born in Poland and received his master's degree from the University of Jerusalem and his PhD from Columbia University.

Patricia Neal Back

NEW YORK (AP) — After a three-year absence, Patricia Neal returns to the screen in the Pulitzer Prize drama, "The Subject Was Roses."

The other film performers, Jack Albeson and Martin Sheen, appeared in the Broadway presentation. The picture adaptation is by the author, Frank D. Gilroy, and is being produced and directed by his partners in the stage original, Edgar Lansbury and Ulu Grosbard.

Gordon Brings Songs Of Love, Work, War

The Gordons, a husband and wife classical guitar and folk song team, will present their fourth concert within five years at Orange County Community College on Sunday, March 3, at 2 p.m. in the Orange Hall auditorium, Middletown.

Admission is free for the program which is sponsored by the college's Leona Miner Music Club. The concert will precede the formal opening of a photographic exhibit on the homeland of poet Dylan Thomas in OCCC's Harriman Gallery.

"Ray and Helen Gordon have a warm and personal manner and they communicate," Dr. Marvin Feman, chairman of the college's music department and coordinator of the concert, said this week. "They play and sing songs of the great masters and the people; they sing songs of love, work, war, the seasons, and spirituals."

Both Gordons hold doctorates in music from Columbia University, and are currently artists-in-residence at the University of Bridgeport. They performed previously at OCCC in 1964, 1965 and 1966. On March 24th they will present a concert in Town Hall in New York City where their 1965 appearance won praise from the metropolitan area critics.

Violin Virtuoso

A classical guitarist, Ray Gordon is a graduate of violin studies at the Juilliard School of Music. He has performed extensively in Europe and four years ago presented recitals of folk music with his wife for the U.S. State Department in many European cities and at several Italian universities.

Helen Gordon, a mezzo-soprano, has performed as soloist with the Louisville Symphony and the Boston Symphony in Tanglewood, and toured Europe for the United States Information Service.

The Gordons sing in French, Italian, Spanish, Russian and Hebrew in addition to English. As part of the concert Sunday, Roy Gordon will perform four of his own pieces, for which he wrote both the words and music: Trouble, A Visit to the Psychiatrist, Lord, What Is Man?, and The Beauty of the Earth. He also composed the music for two other selections which will be offered, Shilo Hill and Slipphorn Jazz.

Sunday's concert will be a seven-part program and, in addition to the numbers listed above, the Gordons will be heard in such folk standards as It's a Rugged Road, Hard Travelin', Lonesome Road, And Men Shall Learn War No more, as well as Gonna Live Till the Day I Die, John Henry, This Ol' Hammer, and Before I'd Be a Slave. Spirituals, songs from other lands (such as Malaguena), comic folk numbers (In Praise of Strong Drink and Cod Liver Oil), and contemporary songs such as Bob Dylan's "Blowin' in the Wind" will also be included.

Legend of Sorrow Behind Masked Ball's Gaiety

On a sunny July day in 1818, a bereaved widow stood alone on a breeze-blown terrace overlooking the Hudson River at Barrytown and watched a funeral steamboat packet cut through the waters below. The boat sounded a ghost-like and mournful salute in eerie music and booming cannon as it passed the spot where she stood vigil. This tribute to a hero's widow (for such she was) carried up through the garden vista over which she watched the river. The melancholy drama over, the boat continued on its way downstream to New York City.

The once youthful widow's name was Janet Livingston Montgomery and she must have shivered from more than the lightness of the breeze that day as the packet rounded the bend. For the boat which was now floating past bore the remains of her husband.

Years hence, when the rumble of distant guns had called, Janet Montgomery had sent her young groom, Richard, off to serve as a general for George Washington. Kissing him goodbye with promise that the stately new home they had planned and started together would be completely finished by his return, she began working feverishly toward a homecoming that would take place in a of his death), she had moved away from the showplace home that, had not war intervened, could have held happier memories for her.

A reincarnated version of Grasmere still stands—and so do the locusts—on the same site today, built there in the early 1800's when the original burned. And tonight it will be as festive as Janet Montgomery once dreamed it would be.

Because Grasmere's present owner, Mrs. Robert Timpson, the former Louise, Duchess of Argyll, is allowing the beautiful and historic old home to be used for a fund-raising benefit, dancers will whirl in a drawing room similar to the one in which Janet Montgomery had hoped to welcome her husband home from the war. Tonight's Masked Ball at Grasmere, when it has run its gala course, will have been responsible for raising approximately $5,000 for the recently formed Hudson Valley Repertory Theater.

When "The Playgoers" hit upon the idea of the formal, masked ball as a means of supporting the fledgling theatrical group in this area, hundreds of couples responded with enthusiasm. Purchasing ball tickets for $30 per pair, they proved historic Grasmere was the proper place for this unique affair, which — by tomorrow morning — may well have established itself as the social event of the year in the Hudson Valley.

Photographers and staff writers from New York City newspapers are expected to make the scene, along with local and area press and hundreds of ball-goers — and, once again (as in colonial times), Grasmere will be back in the news with a flourish. Needless

Fakes and Frauds

The art world has been stunned recently at the news of various and sundry fakes and frauds and, for this reason, a lecture slated at the Albany Institute on March 7 at 8:30 p.m. should prove interesting. Jessie McNab Dennis, assistant curator of Western European Arts at the Metropolitan Museum of Art, will speak at that time on "Fakes, Frauds and Forgeries" in the decorative arts. Her talk will be supplemented by color slides from the Metropolitan's collection.

Mrs. Dennis came here 10 years ago from the Victoria and Albert Museum, London, and Norwich Castle Museum. Articles under her name have appeared in Antiques magazine and the Metropolitan's museum Bulletin.

Her talk is expected to be one of the season's highlights in the area, not only because of her rich background but because her professional duties include detective work involved in guarding against forgeries.

Current exhibits are the Albany Institute include:

A one-man show of the prints and drawings of James M. Mullen, from now until April 7; the William S. Horton exhibit through March; the Lipman Collection of Contemporary American Sculpture until March 17; and a March-long showing of a travelling graphic exhibit from the National Association of Women Artists.

Pinter Movie

"The Caretaker," a highly-praised film adaptation of the Harold Pinter play, will be the ninth program in the Wednesday Film Series at Orange County Community College on March 6. The picture will be shown at 4 p.m. and 8 p.m. in the Orange Hall theater, Middletown.

Acclaimed for its "brilliant bone-deep acting" by the New York Times, the film dissects the sad absurdity of human behavior as three men, living under one roof, match their psyches in a perverse game of emotional billiards. Starring are Donald Pleasance, Robert Shaw and Alan Bates. Clive Donner directed.

pirations, which see in the new Repertory Theatre, a cultural asset of which this area can be as proud as it has always been of Grasmere.

Brass Group In Concert

The West Point Brass Quintet, composed of artists of the U. S. Military Academy Band, will present a public concert at Theater, on the New Paltz, campus Thursday, March 7 at 8:30 p.m.

Musicians appearing will be Larry B. Black, trumpet, David Curry, trumpet, J. Richard Webb, French horn, Ronald Baedke, trombone and Jamie Hafner, tuba.

The program will include the Sonata from "Die Bankensangerlieder" published about 1684 by an anonymous composer; Five Pieces by Johann Pögl 1619-1694; Quintet in B-flat minor by Victor Ewald; op. 5, a Bartok Suite by Bela Bartok; and the Suite from the Montreux Hills of Morley Calvert.

Trumpeter Black, with two degrees from Northwestern University, has played with the Chicago Brass Quintet, Chicago Civic Orchestra, and is a student of Vincent Cichowicz. David Curry, trumpet, attended Philadelphia Musical Academy, and has played with the Philadelphia Musical Academy Brass Quintet, Ventnor Symphony, and the Pennsylvania Ballet.

French hornist J. Richard Webb, attended the University of Wisconsin, has played with the Tokyo Philharmonic, Yokohama Symphony, Yokohama Woodwind Ensemble, and is presently solo horn with the Hudson Valley Philharmonic. He has studied with Marcus Fischer and Joe Singer.

Ronald Baedke, trombone, attended the University of Northern Iowa and Manhattan School of Music, and is a student of John Clark. Tubist Hafner, with two degrees from Cincinnati Conservatory of Music, has played with the Birmingham Symphony, Cincinnati Brass Quintet, and has studied with Samuel Green and Joseph Novotny.

There is no charge for admission to the program, the first guest artist appearance presented for students, faculty, and area residents, by the State University College Bands, at New Paltz.

MOVIES

FIRECREEK. If you like rootin'-tootin' westerns, this movie is for you. The story line is familiar but, after all these years of showdowns on the screen, scriptwriters can't be expected to come up with something new every time around.

In "Firecreek" we are treated once again to the story of the effect on a small sleepy western town when a lawless band of free-booting adventurers arrives on the scene. The only thing that stands between them and total take-over of the town is a $2-a-month farmer sheriff with a badge carved out of tin by his kids.

What's fun about this one, though, is the fact that Henry Fonda plays Larkin, the tough intelligent leader of the toughs. And James Stewart is Johnny Cobb, the part-time sheriff who has his hands full maintaining law and order when his wife is about to give birth again.

If "Firecreek" has anything unusual going for it, it's the excellent development of the characters in the script and the penetrating personality sketches. The members of Fonda's ruffian gang are played with a flourish by Gary Lockwood, as the hot-tempered one; Jack Elam as the lecher; James Best, the irresponsible slouch, and Morgan Woodward, the big, sullen, giant one.

For good measure, the plot also has Dean Jagger as a general store owner, and Ed Begley as a hell-fire traveling preacher. There's also the inevitable, beautiful, unmarried Indian girl (Barbara Luna).

Two of the gang get into a wild brawl over her affection in spite of the fact that she's not interested in the advances of either. Complications set in when a withdrawn boarding house operator (Inger Stevens) starts to fall in love with Fonda, and when a slow-thinking stable boy (J. Robert Porter) tries to defend Meli, the Indian girl, and finds himself accused of murder.

There has to be a showdown, of course, and it comes in a final skirmish during which the sheriff is wounded in a fierce battle which leaves only one of the gang as the sole survivor.

But, if you want to know who he is and how he gets his final comeuppance, you'll have to take yourself over to the Mayfair Theater and find out on your own. We have far too healthy a respect for western shootouts to reveal the predictably violent end of this one. Suffice it to say the fadeout clash bears a marked resemblance to another opus remembered fondly as "High Noon."

INGER STEVENS, cast as a frontier lass who helps her grandfather run a western boarding house, takes aim at one of the bad guys in "FIRECREEK." The Warner Brothers Seven Arts movie is now playing at Kingston's Mayfair Theater, and also stars those alltime screen favorites, James Stewart and Henry Fonda. Fonda's the head of a band that brings blazing lawlessness to a sleepy western town, and Stewart plays the town's sheriff.

Legend of Sorrow Behind Masked Ball's Gaiety

On a sunny July day in 1818, a bereaved widow stood alone on a breeze-blown terrace overlooking the Hudson River at Barrytown and watched a funeral steamboat packet cut through the waters below. The boat sounded a ghost-like and mournful salute in eerie music and booming cannon as it passed the spot where she stood vigil. This tribute to a hero's widow (for such she was) carried up through the garden vista over which she watched the river. The melancholy drama over, the boat continued on its way downstream to New York City.

The once youthful widow's name was Janet Livingston Montgomery and she must have shivered from more than the lightness of the breeze that day as the packet rounded the bend. For the boat which was now floating past bore the remains of her husband.

Years before, when the rumble of distant guns had called, Janet Montgomery had sent her young groom, Richard, off to serve as a general for George Washington. Kissing him good-bye with promise that the stately new home they had planned and started together would be completely finished by his return, she began working feverishly toward a homecoming that would take place in a white-pillared mansion that might perhaps know no peer. But fate ordained that she would never see him again, for he died valiantly in the attack on Quebec on the last day of 1775.

The gloom that hung over the packet that day more than 40 years later as it carried his remains from a temporary grave in Quebec to St. Paul's Church in Manhattan for a soldier's burial — and the memory that he had never been able to share with her their handsome new brick and marble residence, Grasmere, was more than Janet Montgomery could bear. If we are to believe the legend that has come down to us over the intervening years, she swooned there on the terrace that day, in spite of her promise to herself to remain courageous in memory of her husband's gallantry.

Although she no longer lived at Grasmere in Rhinebeck at the time the packet passed, she had assuaged her sorrow somewhat—before selling the house—by planting an Avenue of Locusts leading up to that former residence in memory of Richard and his brave fighting men. Growing grey before her time (indeed some would have it that she grew visibly greyer that day on the terrace, if not at the time she received the news of his death), she had moved away from the showplace home that, had not war intervened, could have held happier memories for her.

A reincarnated version of Grasmere still stands—and so do the locusts—on the same site today, built there in the early 1800's when the original burned. And tonight it will be as festive as Janet Montgomery once dreamed it would be.

Because Grasmere's present owner, Mrs. Robert Timpson, the former Louise, Duchess of Argyle, is allowing the beautiful and historic old home to be used for a fund-raising benefit, dancers will whirl in a drawing room similar to the one in which Janet Montgomery had hoped to welcome her husband home from the war. ## Finger Bowls? Yes and No

"When I've ordered the finger bowls, I know a house is complete," says a Hollywood celebrity whose sideline is renting out completely furnished luxury dwellings.

"Complete, but for how long?" challenges a local builder. "The only kind of a house I'd call complete is a Gold Medallion Home. Every one is geared for total electric living right now. Complete electric heating system and all the appliances you'll need to shorten work and lengthen comfort; and enough extra standby circuits to handle new equipment as it gets invented.

"Finger bowls may seem important during a short term luxury occupancy. But if you own the house — and if it's your biggest single investment — that Gold Medallion on the exterior represents a much higher degree of gracious living than the silver accessories for a company dinner."

Not that you couldn't have both, the builder concedes finally. Just make sure that you stick to the Gold Medallion standard if you're buying a new house or remodeling an old one.

"It's worth stretching yourself for at the beginning if you have to," he continues, "because you know that everything about a house so certified — not only the electrical equipment — is planned to last. And that includes the insulation."

Building costs escalate. No two ways about it. He adds: "The insulation 'spelling out' for Gold Medallion Homes means more than just efficient utilization of heat, too; important as that is. It's a protection to the interior surfaces as well. And you won't have to go in for costly ripping out a few years from now 'to improve the property'. These houses are improved — and approved — the day that medal is tacked on."

"And with those extra circuits — and of course the heavy duty wiring — I can't foresee the time when you'd have to tear into the walls to supplement wiring. So you can leave the escalated costs of future years to the self-made unluckies who bought only enough house for this year."

like. Most of them are too small.
